ROLL OF HONOUR.

In Memoriam.

BASSETT—In loving and cherished memory of Lieutenant William F. Bassett, M.C., Royal Highlanders, attached 2/10th Royal Scots), killed in action, North Russia, 27th October, 1918, late Registry of Deeds, Dublin. "Callen and chosen and faithful."

CAMPBELL—In loving memory of Private Hugh Campbell, Seaforth Highlanders, elder son of R. Campbell, Bean Place, Co. Meath, who died on the 27th October, 1916, from wounds received in action. "He died that we might live."

HALLIGAN—October 27, 1914—To the tender memory of our dearly-loved children, Joseph Henry, R.I. Rifles (Home Star), killed in action October 27th, 1914, and Florence Harper (Biddy), who fell asleep October 29th, 1916. Too dearly-loved to be forgotten by mother, dad, sisters, and brother. Norm not for me whom God hath blest,
And taken to my heavenly rest;
Free from all sorrow, grief, and pain,
Your loss is my eternal gain.

IVERS—In loving memory of our two dear lads, Ted and Bob, killed in action. At evening time it shall be light.

O'FARRELL—First Anniversary.—In loving memory of William Wilfrid (Willie), late Pay Sergeant R.F.A., and Irish Command, Dublin (accidentally killed October 26th, 1917). Inserted by his loving mother.

TAYLOR—On Sunday morning, October 26, at Mary Ethel, eldest beloved daughter of William Taylor, Sandford ter., Ranelagh. Funeral, Wednesday, 9.30 a.m., from Sandford Church. No flowers, by request.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Deane and family, of Whitecrook, desire to return thanks to all those friends and relations who sympathised with them in their recent sad bereavement, and trust they will consider it impossible to reply to each individually.

Mrs. Mason returns thanks to the many kind friends who send letters and telegrams of sympathy in her recent bereavement, and trusts they will consider this acknowledgment sufficient.—The Abbey, Roscrea.

IN MEMORIAM.

BLACKFORD—In affectionate remembrance of Harry Blackford, Woodview Blackrock, who died October, 1918, at Nass, Co. Kildare.
He has gone to a world of sorrow,
Where we all must travel in pain;
Bring trouble, sickness, and sadness,
Into that world we call life.
Only those who truly loved him
Is their sad loss shall remain.
Sweet is the memory of him
Who was one of the best.
Inserted by his loving wife.

DALY—October 27, 1916—In memory of Mabel Daly, late of 54 Grosvenor square, Rathmines, beloved and devoted daughter of
Three years have passed since that sad day,
Three years of heartache and pain;
But memory keeps you ever near us,
And we shall meet you again.
Sacred be the memory of our dear brother, John Dunne, late of Mount Pleasant, Maynooth, and Newcastle, Lyons, who died on October 26th, 1918, aged 24 years.
Those we love don't go away,
They walk beside us every day,
Unseen, unheard, but always near,
Still loved, still missed, and very dear.
Father, Mother, Sisters, and Brothers.

DUNNE—In loving memory of Edward H. Dunne, who died on the 27th October, 1918.—Sister-in-law.

FLEMING—In loving memory of Margaret, the dearly-loved wife of Alexander Marten, of Brookdale, Glasnevin, who departed this life 26th October, 1917.
Sadly missed by her husband.

GILLY—The sad, sweet, loving memory of Mrs. Marion Gilly fell peacefully asleep at her residence, 8 Portobello, October 27th, 1918, and is fondly cherished by her loving children, grandchildren, and friends.
Her life is hallowed into sleep,
Her memory is a prayer;
And every grave becomes a bed
Where angels linger near.

GRAHAM—In loving memory of our dear sister, Ina Ethel, who entered into rest at her parents' residence, Drumcondra rd., Drumcondra, on 27th inst., 1918.
Sleep on, dear Ina, and take your rest,
God has called you home to be blest;
And the Lord will wipe away tears from your eyes
Because He was pleased to take the dead which die in Him.

DEATH OF MR. J. COGHLAN.

Our Cavalcher Correspondent, wiring on Saturday, stated that Mr. J. Coghlan, the well-known owner and trainer of the Brize Claremorris, was conveyed to the County Infirmary, suffering from very serious injuries, the result of a riding accident near his residence. A later message stated that Mr. Coghlan had died under an operation on Saturday evening. Deep regret will be felt in racing and hunting circles at the death, at so early an age, of a very popular sportsman, he was a keen follower of both pastimes, and invariably rode his own horses. Amongst the horses he trained, Signum, Nellie Mac, and St. David are eminently deserving of practice together he owned and trained the useful Spinning Queen, with which he entertained hopes of winning a Galway Plate, and might have done so but for losing an iron in the course of the race. Tirhuah was another good stamp of steeplechaser owned by Mr. Coghlan, who, on the whole, had a very successful time with his horses. He was equally fond of hunting, and gave good sport in the district with his pack of harriers.

The Irish Times.
MONDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1919.

The Supreme Council in Paris on Saturday discussed the disturbances caused at Petersburg, the chief port of Slesvig, by the despatch of German troops to that town.

Sir Eyre Crowe reported to the Supreme Council in Paris on Saturday that General Rieschardt, in charge of the German evacuation of the Baltic Provinces, was every harder to deal with than General von der Goltz. M. Pichon also stated that the departure of the Commission to the Baltic Provinces would be hastened.

The War Office issued on Saturday a report by General Holman which showed that, despite very heavy fighting, Denikin's forces continue to advance, and have taken numerous important towns and railway centres. Trotsky, it is reported, was nearly taken prisoner on October 21st, when the Bolsheviks were forced to retreat from Pulkovo.

The Prince of Wales visited Kingston (Ontario) on Saturday, and received an enthusiastic reception. In the course of the day His Royal Highness was awarded an honorary degree at the Queen's University.

Viscount French visited Otham, near Maidstone, on Saturday, to open the Otham War Memorial and to unveil a cross erected there to the memory of local men who fell in the war. He said that he was glad to be able to claim some of those heroes as comrades of his own in the field. Their names would be handed down, with a well-deserved halo of glory, to the generations yet to come.

A Labour demonstration to urge the Government to nationalise the mines was held in Manchester yesterday. Mr. Frank Hodges, Secretary of the Miners' Federation, addressed the demonstration, and asked the Government to go to the country and test its feeling on nationalisation. A resolution favouring nationalisation was carried unanimously.

Six Sinn Fein prisoners escaped from Manchester Jail on Saturday night. The prisoners, who were convicted in Ireland and removed to England to complete their sentences, gagged and bound a warder, and got over the wall by means of a rope ladder. They have not been recaptured.

Application was made to the Court of King's Bench, Dublin, on Saturday for a writ directed to the Commanding Officer at Richmond Barracks to show cause why Captain the Rev. T. J. O'Donnell, Chaplain to the Australian Forces, who is a prisoner there, should not be released. The Court refused the application. It is understood that the rev. gentleman will be handed over to the Commander of the Australian Forces in London.

At the annual meeting of the Irish Municipal Officials' Union in Dublin on Saturday it was decided that a plebiscite should be taken on the question of the formation of a trade union. Other matters of interest to the members were also under consideration.

Bolshevism at Bay.

From the Baltic to the Caspian Russia remains in a state of ferment. Heavy fighting is reported from north and south, and every one of the several conflicting armies claims victory. But just estimate of the real condition of affairs, therefore, is impossible. At best one can but surmise. The Bolsheviks and the North-West Army under General Yudenitch both declare that they have gained considerable successes in the Petrograd sector. Finnish reports state that the "Reds" have captured Pulkova and Pavlovsk, while the "Whites" affirm that Trotsky himself escaped capture at the first of these places, and that their success at the second was due in the main to the co-operation of British tanks. It appears to be certain, however, that the "Red" Army is making a desperate stand. Trotsky has arrived from Moscow to assume supreme control. Reinforcements have been drafted down from Archangel. Tanks manufactured in Petrograd have come into action; and all the male inhabitants of Petrograd between the ages of 20 and 70 have been put under arms. The city will be defended to the last, but it is in desperate plight. Typhus and cholera are said to be raging; all the theatres and places of amusement are closed; a curfew law forbidding the inhabitants to be out of their houses after 8 p.m. has been put into force; and even the most sybaritic of the Soviet members is restricted to a diet of water, herrings, and bread. Yudenitch has asked the Finns to assist him in his anti-Bolshevist campaign, but the Helsingfors Government has decided not to interfere in Russia's internal affairs. This refusal to co-operate is unfortunate, because it suggests that the Bolshevist influence in Finland is still strong—a circumstance which is bound to react unfavourably in any attempted confederation of independent Baltic States.

In the south the situation is no less obscure. The British War Office has issued a communiqué which reproduces the testimony of Major-General Holman to Denikin's successes. This officer is the chief of the British Military Mission with the Cossack leader's armies, and his statements carry authority; but, on the other hand, the Bolshevists claim to have important victories also on this front. According to Major-General Holman, heavy fighting is taking place on the whole 700-mile front from Tsaritsin to Kieff. He admits that the "Reds" have captured Orel and Voronezh, but explains their success by the suggestion that they concentrated on very narrow fronts "in a vehement attempt to restore the moral of their retreating troops." On the other hand, Denikin's troops have attacked Orel again and advanced to its southern outskirts. They have captured Yeletz, a highly important junction where five railways meet, with a population of close on 60,000, and they are attacking Briansk, on the River Desna, which is a large junction on the railway line Orel-Smolensk-Dunaburg-Riga. Furthermore, the Don Cossacks in the south-east are advancing on a front of 120 miles. Bobrinoff has been surrounded, and Novo Khoperisk is being attacked. The objectives of this army seem to be Saratoff and Penza, the capture of which would provide valuable links with Kolitchak, of whom nothing is heard. Denikin's troops are now, roughly, about 200 miles from Moscow. The Bolshevists are offering very stubborn resistance to his advance, but his progress, although necessarily slow, is very steady. He has received the blessing of the Cadet Party, which will strengthen his position considerably, and he is getting important help from the Allies. Time, however, is the Bolshevists' greatest ally, and for that reason the tactical advantages which have been won should be followed up without delay.

In a few weeks the Russian winter will paralyse all military activity in that country. It is the aim of the Bolshevists to avert defeat until the army of the elements comes to their aid. They hope then to have an opportunity of reorganisation. A recent proclamation by Trotsky discovers his plan. He relies upon the advent of world—or, at any rate, of European—revolution during the coming winter. "The toiling masses of England are with us. Trotsky evidently has great faith in his agents in England. If he thinks, however, that the British proletariat is sufficiently foolish to sacrifice its hard won status in the commonwealth and break a lance for him and his horde of cold-blooded murderers, he is sadly mistaken. Nevertheless, the voice of Moscow is insidiously attractive. It promises a mundane Paradise to the toilers of the earth; but it is the voice of the siren, luring them to their doom. If Trotsky can defend himself against Yudenitch, Denikin, and Koltchak for another month, his hopes will be raised again. He and his accomplices will redouble their efforts to bring about industrial and social revolutions throughout Europe in order that they may fulfil their ambition to lead the workers of the world in a dance of death to destruction. The absence of a Government policy towards Russia makes it incumbent upon every Briton to fend for himself. A deaf ear must be turned to the voice of the tempter. If the "Whites" can take their objectives before the winter falls, Bolshevism will be finished; but their task is enormous, and the forces arrayed against them are desperate. The winter holds appalling horrors in store for the wretched victims of the "Terror" in Russia. Let the well-nourished workers of our democracy consider their condition and guard against their fate

The Government and Trade.

The Federation of British Industries has taken the Government to task for its immediate trade policy. In a memorandum which has been addressed to the Board of Trade attention is called to the injurious effect that indefinite statements and sudden reversals of policy have upon the industry of the country. They create an atmosphere of uncertainty which embarrasses all sections of trade and increases the difficulties of reconstruction. The manner in which the embargo on the importation of German goods was raised is the subject of bitter complaint. Traders received only twelve days' notice, and had no opportunity of making adequate arrangements to meet the altered conditions. Before coming to its decision the Board of Trade neither sought the advice of the Imports Restriction Council nor examined the evidence that it had collected. It did not even consult the representatives of organisations in the different industries affected, although the Government had given distinct pledges that their opinions should be considered before any action was taken. The result was a regrettable degree of confusion. The sudden throwing open of the market to German goods caused a stoppage of orders. Buyers, very naturally, waited to see what effect the new conditions would have on prices. Development was thereby checked, and there was an inevitable reaction on production and employment. Manufacturers who made forward contracts on the assumption that they would receive fair warning of any change of policy were gravely embarrassed. It is essential that the conditions governing prices shall be, as far as possible, constant and continuous. The Government, however, upset them light-heartedly at almost a moment's notice. The removal of the restrictions on imports was not the only case of this kind; the suddenness with which the price of coal was increased by six shillings per ton was an even more glaring example. How can manufacturers protect themselves against the harmful effects of these rapid changes? The only thing that they can do is to introduce clauses in contracts reserving the right to vary prices to meet possible changes in conditions affecting them. By doing that, however, they would be forging weapons against themselves. Buyers fight shy of contracts that provide for fluctuating prices; they want security. If they cannot get it from British manufacturers, they will go elsewhere. The Federation's complaint against the Government's hasty actions is well founded, and its plea that conditions shall not be disturbed before the industries vitally affected by any proposal have been consulted is a reasonable one. The Government cannot afford to ignore it. The memorandum deals at length with the measures that the Federation considers necessary to foster industries that were born during the war. Many of them are "key" industries, and their existence will be seriously threatened if a system of free importation from abroad is allowed while production costs remain at their present inflated level. The sooner Mr. Lloyd George introduces his anti-dumping Bill the better.

Congested Hotels.

The causes of the shortage of houses throughout the United Kingdom are obvious; but it is less easy to understand the present scarcity of hotel accommodation in London and other large cities. Before the war the building of big hotels was active in London, and most of those which, during the war, were "commandeered" by public departments have been restored to their proper use. Yet the casual visitor to London in these days is lucky to be granted a night's lodging as a favour and at a stiff charge. If he fails to engage a room by telegraph, he is more than likely to find himself stranded in a bleak railway terminus. If it is startling to see a substantial premium offered for the "key" of a house, it is still more startling to see a similar premium proposed for the privilege of paying for rooms at a hotel. An advertisement in The Times of Saturday offers "£10 reward" for information which will enable the advertiser to engage three rooms in a first-class hotel in Central London for a period of three weeks in November. Large numbers of Colonials and foreigners are still in London; but that fact alone hardly explains the congestion. The real explanation—at least, the explanation which most of the hotel managers supply—is disquieting for the preachers of retrenchment. It seems that London is the present Mecca of all the people in the English provinces who have been enriched by the war. They pour in from the country, filling the hotels; and they spend their money as quickly as they made it. They are good customers, because they eat and drink luxuriously and are lavish with their "tips." We are told that more champagne is being drunk in London hotels to-day than at any other time in the last five years. This is a discouraging phenomenon. We fear that it will continue until the Government ceases merely to talk about economy, and begins to set a real example to the nation.

The Servant Problem.

Emboldened, no doubt, by his success in other directions, the Minister of Labour has decided to tackle the domestic servant problem. He has prepared a scheme which seeks to establish close co-operation between private registry offices and the Labour Exchanges. Any registry office which is officially approved will be entitled to notify the nearest Exchange of suitable vacancies that come to its knowledge. In return the Exchange will refer suitable applications from the official list to the registry office, with the stipulation, of course, that no fee shall be charged to a domestic servant who obtains a situation under the scheme. This devolution by a Government institution of part of its own duties to a private concern is unusual, but no serious exception can be taken to it. The relation between a domestic servant and her mistress is of a more personal nature than that which usually exists between employed and employer, and a well-managed registry office stands a better chance than a Labour Exchange of adjusting matters between them in a satisfactory manner. The scheme will operate in England for a year, and, if it is successful, it may be extended to Ireland. Meanwhile, people in search of a servant might turn their attention to the possibility of securing a man-of-all-work. The chief London office of the Comrades of the Great War reports that it has a register of 150 ex-soldiers who are willing to take domestic service. These men, it is stated, are ready to undertake all manner of jobs. In France domestic staffs are often composed of a man and his wife, and there is no reason why the system should not work quite as well in the United Kingdom.

The King will hold a Privy Council on Wednesday.

Prince Albert was on Saturday admitted to the Freedom of the Drapers' Company.

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
SUNDAY NIGHT.

The Parliamentary prospect for to-morrow seems at the moment to be "set fair," and everything has been comfortably arranged with regard to the Aliens Bill. At the same time, it has to be recognised by the Government that it will have to walk warily. Its great following is no longer disciplined and docile like a regiment of soldiers. Unrest has affected the members of Parliament just as it has other branches of the community, and it is taking the form of an assertion of independence. The Prime Minister, most of all, will have to watch the temper of the House carefully, and, in order to do this, he will be wise to attend daily for a time. The economy debate on Wednesday and Thursday may prove to be a ticklish one.

Mr. Bottomley has given notice of a motion to the effect "that the House of Commons, whilst ready to give sympathetic consideration to the just demands of the railway workers, condemns the recent lightning strike as unjustified, unpatriotic, undemocratic, and inimical to the best interests of Labour." In this connection it is interesting to notice that Mr. Thomas to-day says that there were 550,000 railway workers from his own and the other trade unions on strike. There were, in addition, before the end of the week, nearly 400,000 miners out, as well as various other classes of workers, of whom he estimates that at least 2,000,000 were either directly or indirectly involved in the stoppage.

It is said to-day that the Parliamentary Committee of the Trade Union Congress intends to force an early General Election on the subject of nationalisation. It is difficult to see how it can force such an election by legitimate action, for the Government still possesses a great majority in the House of Commons, and the Labour Party numbers only one-tenth of that assembly. It will be interesting to see what steps the Trade Union Congress intends to take to force this issue upon the electorate. Mr. Grattan Doyle, by the way, will point out one way to the Prime Minister to-morrow, for he will ask whether, in view of the importance now assumed by the question of the nationalisation of mines, the Government will adopt the democratic and constitutional method of submitting the issue to the free and unfettered verdict of the people by a referendum of the whole electorate.

The Labour situation in the United States is growing alarming, and the country is threatened with the greatest Labour upheaval in the history of the world. It is anticipated that there will be some two million men on strike within the next fortnight unless a way out of the difficulty can be found. Half a million railway workers are threatening, while many steel workers are already out. President Wilson, it is said, will declare a strend by the miners illegal, but whether that will make them desist or return to work is another story. It is unfortunate for the United States that President Wilson should be lying on a bed of sickness, for never were his counsels so sorely needed. Possibly anxiety attaching to the present situation will do more to retard his recovery than anything else.

The first meeting of the Select Committee on Land Valuation is to be held on Tuesday, and the proceedings promise to be of a most interesting character. The first witness will be the Chief Valuer, and his evidence is expected to be instructive. There are people who are now stating that the present shortage of houses is due almost entirely to the system of land valuation set up by Mr. Lloyd George in his great Finance Bill, since it did away with the speculative builder almost entirely.

Major O'Neill will ask the Chief Secretary to-morrow whether a railway company in Ireland is allowed to constitute itself a Public Utility Society under the provisions of the Irish Housing Act for the purpose of building houses for its employés in the vicinity of its railway stations.

Mr. Lynn, on Thursday next, will ask the Chief Secretary whether, in view of the extreme hardship on local ratepayers in maintaining the lunatic poor, the unfair incidence of taxation, and the unsatisfactory condition of the Local Taxation (Ireland) Account, he will consider the advisability of increasing the rate in aid to fifty per cent. of the actual cost of maintaining the lunatic poor.

It is probable that further efforts will be made before long to get a statement from the Government regarding its policy on Ulster control. Most people think it quite time that the control was taken away and a return to pre-war conditions made. The compulsory closing of tobacco shops is another sore point. In London not an ounce of tobacco or a cigarette can be purchased after eight o'clock in the evening, in an hour when thousands of people, but on a measurement particularly, want to purchase. A similar state of things applies to confectioners.

Oil is fast taking the place of coal on our merchant liners, and it seems not impossible that before long the latter fuel will not be needed. Provision is being made at ports all over the world for the feeding of ships with oil fuel, and at ports in this country great tanks have been erected holding thousands of gallons of oil, ready for use, without trouble or the dirt caused by coaling. Tanks have been fixed at Colombo, the Bermudas; and others are being set up at Port Said, Cape Town, and Malta. Many of our naval vessels are fitted for oil fuel, and many merchant ships are being converted for the same purpose.

Bermondsey, in South London, is one of the places where the "Profiteering" Act is taken very seriously. Recognising the difficulty attending the making of complaints on the part of the ordinary shopper the local "Profiteering" Committee is appointed to act as a kind of public prosecutor. Its duty will be to make purchases and inquiries with a view to prosecution when necessary. The Committee has also applied for powers to enter warehouses and wharves, since it believes that "profiteering" is practised among certain dealers. Bermondsey is a very big district and a very poor one, and "profiteering" is said to have flourished alarmingly.

The Committee on Old Age Pensions, whose chairman is Sir Ryland Adkins, have not quite concluded their proceedings, though they held a number of meetings during the recess. It is expected, however, that they will be able to present their report not later than the 30th inst. This is sure to recommend some increase in the existing rate of the pension (5s. per week), but the exact amount has not yet been decided. It will certainly not raise the pension to £1, as has been advocated in some quarters.

I was talking this morning to an Anglo-Indian and his wife, who have come home to see their people in one of the London suburbs. They have been looking forward to this holiday ever since the outbreak of war, but it has proved a bitter disappointment to them. They find it impossible to get a house; they find it impossible to get a maid or a nurse to look after their children; and the high prices ruling in every direction horrify them, since they have only the normal amount of money to spend that Anglo-Indians generally accumulate while waiting for a holiday. The husband as part of his holiday has to undergo an operation, due to his work in India, or he and his family would be getting back to India at the earliest moment.

The Postmaster-General announces that the Anglo-French telephone service will be re-opened to the public on Tuesday, October 28th. The revision of charges for conversation will be announced shortly. For the present they will be the same as those in force before the war.

Sir Walpole Lloyd Greenwell, Bart., died on Friday night at his Surrey residence, aged 72, from pneumonia. He was a well-known breeder of pedigree stock.

FROM "THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY.

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE PROPRIETORS OF THE TIMES.)

AFTER THE DEFEAT.

The Times Parliamentary Correspondent writes to-day:—It will probably fall to Mr. Bonar Law's lot this afternoon to announce the terms of the settlement which Ministers and the representative members of the majority have made at Friday's conference. The Government will ask the House to accept the addition of words to the Pilotage Clause which will allow the French Convention to be observed and the fishing privileges of a few Belgian pilots to be respected. No mention was made of Belgium on Monday's debate. The Government, however, discovered that one or two Belgian pilots would be affected by the vote of the Commons, and pressed for their case to be treated on all fours with the French at the private conference on Friday. Next, the Government will make it clear that no pilot of any other nationality will be allowed to bring a ship into a British port. In return the Government have promised very substantial concessions on the Civil Police and Deportation Clauses. Neither of those clauses was in the bill in its original form. They are limited to four clauses, but the Standing Committee to which it was referred found it so inadequate that they added ten. Among those which the Committee carried against the wish of the Government are Clauses 6 and 8, limiting drastically the appointment of aliens to the Civil Service, and providing for the deportation of former enemy aliens, except such as were licensed to remain on specified grounds. Mr. Shortt had tabled amendments to reverse the decision of the Committee by leaving out both clauses. The Government decided not to risk another defeat, and the decisions of the Committee will be allowed substantially to stand. The Government will see to it that the Civil Service clauses are made watertight. They will also accept the larger part of the deportation clause. There will be a change on one point of detail. The rule, as it stands, sets out as one of the grounds on which a former enemy alien may be granted a licence to remain, "that the applicant has lived for at least 35 years in this country and married a British-born wife." It is agreed at the Conference that the period of 5 years should be considerably reduced.

Taken as a whole, the Government will pass this Bill, and the Navy Emergency Laws (Continuance) Bill. Danger to the first measure is threatened by an amendment standing in the name of Lord Robert Cecil for equal franchise rights for men and women, or something like adult suffrage. The report that Mr. Astor will be a candidate in the Plymouth by-election comes at an opportune moment. A second bill which is down for discussion to-morrow is a still more contentious measure. It is designed to continue temporarily a large number of emergency regulations made under the Defence of the Realm Acts. The bare idea of continuing war regulations in peace time makes widespread hostility, and the moment the bill appeared in print Sir Frederick Banbury gave notice that he would move its rejection. Its schedules are full of pitfalls for the Government, and it can only be carried if the Attorney-General, who is in charge of the measure, is prepared to take half-a-pound of flesh.

THE TALE AND THE TEACHING.

MORAL OF THE IRISH CONVENTION.

Commenting on the final instalment of the story of the Irish Convention, which it publishes to-day, The Times, in a leading article, says:—

Whatever else the failure of the Convention to solve its main object has prejudiced its work in the eyes of the public. As a people, we are afraid of failures, and are apt to leave the causes for them to be elucidated by students of history. That limitation on the power of a Parliament—for Sinn Fein confides its own power eventually to compel outstanding Parties to come to an Irish settlement—is, on the other hand, Belfast may, while growing loudly, be prepared, in the last resort, to give exotic industries from a Dublin Parliament, even though it should involve the subsidies of the outlying counties of Ireland. These considerations are, doubtless, present to the minds of the Cabinet Committee which has to frame a policy, but they are not those which were to those of some members of the Convention, but in our view the concoction of a solution, as a whole, was higher and more comprehensive than that of Sinn Fein or of Unionists of Belfast. The Convention represented the real mind of the Irish people more truly than it has since been represented. Nor, it's very failure to secure its main object, has it any less moral upon British statesmanship the obligation of providing in the light, as far as it achieved and of what it narrowly failed of achieving, such a solution for the Irish problem as Irishmen themselves may at their leisure to have been inspired by honest desire for the permanent welfare as a self-governing nation.

RUSSIA NORTH AND SOUTH.

DENIKIN'S ADVANCE.

SHARP FIGHTING NEAR PETROGRAD.

TROTSKY'S NARROW ESCAPE.

The North-West Army communique, issued on Friday, says:—The enemy tried to attack the villages between Krassnoye Selo and Tsarskoe Selo, but were repulsed. According to a wireless message of October 21, Trotsky was nearly taken prisoner, but was saved almost by a miracle, when the Bolsheviks were forced suddenly to retreat from Pulkovo.

The Finnish Press Bureau understands, says a telegram of Saturday's date, that the Bolsheviks yesterday captured Pulkovo and Pargolovsk, south of Tsarskoe Selo, and that the whites have left Tsarskoe Selo and Ligovo.

DEFENCE OF PETROGRAD.

Trotsky, says a Press Association message, dated Helsingfors, Friday, is reported to have arrived in Petrograd, in order, personally, to conduct the defence of the city. Trotsky and Zinovieff are signing all proclamations. All the theatres are closed, and nobody is allowed in the streets after 8 o'clock in the evening. The report further adds that the Bolsheviks have succeeded in defeating the counter-attack of Yudenitch, and have captured, with 1,500 prisoners and much material. Between Tsaritsin and Voronej the Don Army is advancing on a front of 120 miles, and during the last few days has captured Liski, Pavlovsk, and Boguchar, forty to fifty-five miles, capturing the stations of Archeda and Filonovo and the important junction of Povorino, on the Tsaritzin-Veletsa railway.

All the Don troops are now attacking Novo Khopeesk. Further north they have occupied Novo Chigla and Shishovka, taking 500 prisoners and two armoured trains, and have succeeded in cutting the Moscow-Tsaritzin railway, where the Bolsheviks are surrendering in large numbers. In the Voronej area General Helman reports that heavy fighting is continuing.

Though the General Staff says troops were forced to withdraw some distance south of Orel, they have now advanced again to the southern outskirts of the town, and fighting is proceeding there.

In the course of engagements at Zolotarevo, 11 miles east of Orel, the Volunteer Army defeated three enemy regiments, and captured 500 prisoners.

Further west General Helman reports that General Denikin's troops are fighting successfully on a wide front. Their advance is directed on Bryansk, an important town, and the junction of six railways, 220 miles south-west of Moscow.

All three junctions—Yeleta, Orel, and Bryansk—are important points in connection with an advance on Moscow, and their possession is being hotly contested.

LETTISH GOVERNMENT BACK AT RIGA.

Telegraphing from Copenhagen on Saturday, the Press Association's correspondent says:—A message to the Lettish Press Bureau from Riga of yesterday's date, states that the Lettish Governmental authorities are now all back in Riga. It is also stated that Riga's bread supplies have been secured, that all shops are open, and that in spite of the Bolshevik bombardment, the town has resumed its normal life.

DENIKIN'S PROGRESS.

IMPORTANT POSITIONS CAPTURED.

The War Office on Saturday issued the following statement:—A cable from Major-General H. C. Holman, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., Chief of the British Military Mission with General Denikin, dated Taganrog, October 24th, reports heavy fighting on the whole of the front from Tsaritsin to Kiev, a distance of over 700 miles. It would appear that the Red armies, in a vehement attempt to restore the moral of their retreating troops, have concentrated on narrow fronts against the important cities and junctions of Voronej and Kursk. The successes they have scored in the capture of these two places have, however, failed altogether to stem the general progress of the armed forces of South Russia. On the Tsaritsin front General Wrangel, commanding the Caucasian Army, after repulsing repeated and stubborn attacks, has taken the initiative, and is advancing successfully.

General Holman reports that towns thirty miles north and fifty miles north-west of Tsaritsin have been captured, with 1,500 prisoners and much material. Between Tsaritsin and Voronej the Don Army is advancing on a front of 120 miles, and during the last few days has captured Liski, Pavlovsk, and Boguchar, forty to fifty-five miles, capturing the stations of Archeda and Filonovo and the important junction of Povorino, on the Tsaritzin-Veletsa railway.

All the Don troops are now attacking Novo Khopeesk. Further north they have occupied Novo Chigla and Shishovka, taking 500 prisoners and two armoured trains, and have succeeded in cutting the Moscow-Tsaritzin railway, where the Bolsheviks are surrendering in large numbers. In the Voronej area General Helman reports that heavy fighting is continuing.

Though the General Staff says troops were forced to withdraw some distance south of Orel, they have now advanced again to the southern outskirts of the town, and fighting is proceeding there.

In the course of engagements at Zolotarevo, 11 miles east of Orel, the Volunteer Army defeated three enemy regiments, and captured 500 prisoners.

Further west General Helman reports that General Denikin's troops are fighting successfully on a wide front. Their advance is directed on Bryansk, an important town, and the junction of six railways, 220 miles south-west of Moscow.

All three junctions—Yeleta, Orel, and Bryansk—are important points in connection with an advance on Moscow, and their possession is being hotly contested.

AMERICAN MINERS TO STRIKE.

PRESIDENT'S STRONG VIEWS.

Reuter's Washington telegram of Saturday says:—The last effort of the Government to prevent a strike of bituminous coal-miners has failed completely, and half a million miners are to cease work on the eve of winter, with the nation's coal supply dangerously short.

President Wilson has issued a statement with the approval of the Cabinet, declaring that the proposed strike of bituminous coal miners is both unjustifiable and unlawful in the circumstances. The President has also called upon the officers of the various unions to recall the orders for a strike, adding: "I can do nothing less than say that the law will be enforced, and means found to protect the interests of the nation in any emergency which may arise out of this unhappy business."

THE BRITISH TREATY WITH AFGHANISTAN.

Referring to the charge of subservience made against the Indian Government in the Treaty with Afghanistan, the Pioneer denies the assertion, and states that Sir Hamilton Grant explicitly warned the Afghan delegates that no claim or demand which they might make would be even considered. No new arrangements was entered into with the Amir at Kabul, but the delegates were informed that if Afghanistan showed real contrition the Government would be prepared to receive another mission after six months.

OBITUARY.

MR. JOHN HORNER, J.P.

One of Belfast's most prominent citizens, Mr. John Horner, J.P., died on Saturday. He was the owner of the Clonard Foundry, and made a name for himself as the inventor of the hackling machine, a most valuable appliance in connection with the preparation of flax for spinning, with the preparation of flax for spinning, with which the present backward knowledge in English and arithmetic a handicap in industrial life. A grant in aid of elementary evening schools is available, on compliance with the conditions of the rules and regulations of the Commissioners of National Education, and the Committee will consider the position of their classes in this connection.

All ex-Service men and others interested in these classes are invited to attend. The Committee will ask the kind assistance of organisations and individuals in the use of halls or rooms suitable for classes, and by voluntary help in the organisation and management of classes, and by gifts of educational books and school equipment. Those who may be kind enough to give such assistance are asked to write to the Hon. Secretary, F. W. Ryan, School Office, 20 Kildare street, Dublin.

The outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in the Isle of Wight is so serious that the wholesale slaughter of cattle on about a dozen farms and holdings is being resorted to. Many, including cows, have been shot and buried on the lime, under directions of the Board of Agriculture.

Archibald Sinclair, Bart., has been appointed to be His Majesty's Lieutenant for the County of Caithness, in the room of the Duke of Portland, and Sir Ian Colquhoun, K.C.B., to be His Majesty's Lieutenant for the County of Dumbarton, in the room of the Earl of Lennox.

SUPREME COUNCIL.

THE TESCHEN PLEBISCITE.

GERMANY AND THE BALTIC PROVINCES.

POSITION AT FLENSBORG.

The Supreme Council, says a Press Association message, dated Paris, Saturday, met today, under the presidency of the Foreign Minister, M. Pichon, and approved the text of the instructions which are to be given to the Commission entrusted with the organisation of a plebiscite in Teschen.

In view of a complaint from the Polish Delegation, the Supreme Council directed the Commission on Polish Affairs to ascertain whether the German Government is conducting municipal elections in Upper Silesia. It is pointed out that such elections should not take place before the arrival of the Commission entrusted with the organisation of a plebiscite in Upper Silesia.

The Supreme Council discussed the situation created by the disturbances in Flensborg, the chief port of Slesvig, caused by the despatch of German troops to that town, which is situated in the zone that should be occupied by contingents of Allied troops after the Peace Treaty has come into force.

The Supreme Council furthermore decided to distribute the text of the Bulgarian reply to the peace terms among the various competent Commissions, and to instruct them to make reports thereon within a week.

Sir Eyre Crowe communicated a telegram from the British representative at Riga, reporting intensified attacks by the Germans, and urging the immediate occupation of Tilsit and Memel. He observed that all the news which had recently reached the British Delegation tended to show that General Eberhardt was even harder to deal with than General von der Goltz. He pointed out that no reply had yet been sent to the German proposal for an Inter-Allied Commission in the Baltic provinces to superintend the evacuation of the German troops, and that the Commission had not yet left Paris.

M. Pichon, the French Foreign Minister, stated that the departure of the Commission would be hastened, and that, since General Mannigin did not wish to go, General Niessel would probably take his place.

A committee was appointed to examine and report on the question of procedure involved in the resumption of diplomatic relations with Germany.

The next meeting of the Council will take place on October 28th.

According to several newspapers, says a Paris telegram, dated Sunday, General Franchet d'Esperey will be sent to the Baltic provinces to superintend the evacuation of the German troops.

The Humanité publishes the text of a protest, signed by many well-known Frenchmen, against the Baltic blockade.

CARRYING OUT THE TREATY.

Saturday's Paris Liberté states that the measures decided upon between the Supreme Council and Marshal Foch regarding the appointment of various Commissions and the military measures relative to the carrying out of the Peace Treaty will come into force between November 5th and November 10th.

RUMANIA AND BESSARABIA.

A report has appeared in the Press here, says a Press Association message dated Paris, Saturday, to the effect that Rumania had informed the Supreme Council of her intention to incorporate Bessarabia in Rumania, and that, in consequence of the Rumanian attitude, the Council had addressed an ultimatum to the Rumanian Government. As the result of inquiries in British Delegation circles, it is learned that no such claim on the part of Rumania, and no such reply from the Supreme Council, had come to the knowledge of the British Delegation.

AUSTRIA SIGNS THE TREATY.

The President, Dr. Seitz, says a Press Association message from Vienna, signed the Peace Treaty on Saturday morning.

UNITED STATES AND ARMENIA.

The Press Association's Paris Correspondent, in a message dated Saturday, says:—General Harbord, the Chief of the American Mission to Armenia, will submit the report on his mission to Mr. Polk to-morrow. It will be forwarded to the State Department. Though there are understood to be divergent views among the members of the Mission, there will be no minority report. Nothing is definitely known at this time of the text of the report, but it is understood that no special recommendations have been made. It is, however, certain that the members of the Mission regard America's acceptance of the mandate for Armenia after as entirely out of the question.

FIUME DIFFICULTY. A PROBABLE SOLUTION.

In a message, dated Saturday, the Press Association's Rome Correspondent says:—The Messaggero learns from Washington that the negotiations regarding Fiume are progressing towards a solution, and that a compromise satisfactory to both Italy and President Wilson will be found. The United States Government is said to have suggested a solution of the problem in order to await the end of the agitation resulting from D'Annunzio's exploit. The last communication of the late Ambassador Thos. Nelson Page, Signor Macchi di Cellere, to Mr. Lansing, is said to have largely helped in bringing about an agreement between the two Governments. It is thought here that D'Annunzio will finally accept this solution.

SCOTTISH LIBERALS IN SESSION.

The chief resolutions coming before the closing session of the Scottish Liberal Association's Autumn Conference at Edinburgh on Saturday had regard to the indebtedness of Liberals throughout the country to Mr. Asquith, Mr. Runciman, M.P., and his colleagues in the House of Commons, and expressed the conviction that a reunited and re-established Liberal Party was necessary to save the country from economic and industrial disaster.

Sir Donald, who was received with loud cheers, referring to the adverse Government vote, said that he did not attach very much importance to it. It might be fully summed up in what Lloyd George, Mr. Asquith, and Bonar Law on a Friday—it was not necessarily fatal, but very unfortunate. (Laughter.) But as far as the particular issue was concerned, he had not the slightest doubt that the Government ought to, and would be able to, put things right on Monday. Behind all, however, they must bear in mind the big events that come to fruition on "side issues." There might be a great deal more behind this event than the particular issue. Let them see to it in their preparation for the coming fight—not to be so long delayed—that, no matter what the consequences might be, they selected men whose answer rang true to Liberalism.

MR. HUGHES AND FATHER O'DONNELL.

A Reuter's Melbourne telegram dated Monday, says:—Mr. Hughes, Prime Minister, has sent a cablegram to Lord Milner asking for the release of Father O'Donnell, who, he says, during the war, by word and deed, proved himself a patriot. Archbishop Mannix endorses Mr. Hughes' view that the matter should be probed to the very bottom.

CONTINUATION CLASSES FOR DISCHARGED SOLDIERS.

A meeting will be held this evening, at 8 o'clock, at the School Office, 20 Kildare street, Dublin, to promote continuation classes for discharged soldiers and other ex-Service men in the winter months. The purpose of these classes will be the preparation for the entrance examination in 1921 to the City of Dublin Municipal Technical Schools, by which students may enter trade or technical classes suited to their employment, and also to improve the general education of those attending. It is intended, in particular, to establish classes for younger men whose normal education has been arrested by their service during the war, and who find their present backward knowledge in English and arithmetic a handicap in industrial life. A grant in aid of elementary evening schools is available, on compliance with the conditions of the rules and regulations of the Commissioners of National Education, and the Committee will consider the position of their classes in this connection.

All ex-Service men and others interested in these classes are invited to attend. The Committee will ask the kind assistance of organisations and individuals in the use of halls or rooms suitable for classes, and by voluntary help in the organisation and management of classes, and by gifts of educational books and school equipment. Those who may be kind enough to give such assistance are asked to write to the Hon. Secretary, F. W. Ryan, School Office, 20 Kildare street, Dublin.

AN UNTOLD TALE.

STORY OF THE IRISH CONVENTION.

ULTIMATE PHASES.

The Times of to-day publishes the third, and final, article on the inner history of the Irish Convention, by a Special Correspondent, who writes:—After an adjournment of nearly three months, necessitated by the work in Committee, the Convention reassembled at Trinity College. The Sub-Committee of Nine had failed to find agreement; the Grand Committee had been no more successful. It remained to be seen whether in the Convention a more fertile spirit of compromise would assert itself.

LORD MIDLETON'S EFFORT.

The Chairman had made his report, and Lord Midleton opened the debate with an explanation of his suggestions for solution. Impelled by a high sense of the great national issues involved, he subordinated the convictions and self-interest of his party to a constructive effort at settlement. It was at once evident that his action was keenly appreciated, and that his proposals were likely to secure a considerable measure of support. But, save that Mr. Barrie made it clear that they were uncongenial to the Northern Unionists, it was impossible before the Christmas adjournment to estimate accurately the prospects of their ultimate acceptance.

A SCHISM IN THE UNIONIST RANKS.

At this time the minds of many turned to speculation as to the probable results were an agreement found to a scheme of self-government among all parties save that of the Ulster Unionists. Would the Government bring in legislation in these circumstances? There had been no Ministerial statements which definitely precluded the idea. Lord Midleton's proposals had created a schism in the Unionist ranks. The acceptance by a party of so wide a measure of self-government shook the foundations of the Ulster case against Home Rule. Many believed that, if such an agreement were achieved, the Government would find it difficult to adhere to the pledges which bound them to Sir Edward Carson. The recorded acceptances of the Committee of Nine, even though they were provisional, marked a distinct advance from the position of 1914. It eventually became the aim of the Centre Party in the Convention to consolidate as large a number as possible in such an alliance, even though Ulster stood aloof.

THE COMPROMISE RESOLUTION.

On January 2, Lord Midleton moved his compromise resolution in the following form:—"That in the event of the establishment of an Irish Parliament, there shall be reserved for the Parliament of the United Kingdom full authority for all Imperial Services, including the levying of Customs duties, but subject to the allocation of the proceeds to Ireland; that Irish Services, including Judicature and Police, with internal taxation and administration"—

TWO OMINOUS SPEECHES.

During the debate that followed, Mr. W. M. Murphy and the Bishop of Raphoe both made powerful speeches in favour of complete fiscal autonomy. Both speeches were ominous. In spite of the general approbation by the Nationalists of Lord Midleton's action, which was regarded by them as dynamic for good, it was abundantly clear that the Convention tended towards division into three groups—firstly, there was the Ulster Unionist delegation, which had announced that the Advisory Committee in Belfast would have none of Lord Midleton's proposals, and it seemed scarcely probable that his party would budge an inch on that point; secondly, certain Nationalists, who, like Mr. Murphy, appeared to be obsessed by the importance of complete control of indirect taxation; thirdly, the remainder of the Convention, who were prepared to consider compromises between these two positions. There still seemed, however, a probability of eventual coalescence between the last two.

MR. REDMOND'S AMENDMENT.

Mr. Redmond had spoken, and his speech still left his attitude uncertain. It was clear, at this point he resolved by placing on the agenda paper for January 15 an amendment to Lord Midleton's resolution. Its terms were:—"After the word 'that' in line 1, to insert the words, 'should the proposals of the Southern Unionists, as defined in this resolution and in the memorandum issued by Lord Midleton, be adopted by His Majesty's Government as a settlement of the Irish question, full effect to be given to them forthwith, the Convention is prepared to agree to that."

THE NATIONALIST LEADER BROKEN.

In view of this amendment, it appeared that the solution of the Ulster Unionists had become a certainty, that a measure of self-government would be produced in the existence of which the Nationalist leader would be completely broken. Whether such a course was not necessarily obvious to the successor of Parnell. It was only a few hours before he rose to speak that he learned that, in addition to the opposition of Mr. Patrick A. Devlin, his first lieutenant, nor on that of the Bishop of Raphoe, one of the oldest adherents of his party, and that they did not speak for themselves alone. At what might have proved the culminating moment of his long and honourable career of service to his country he found himself deserted by those on whom he had always felt that he had a right to count. When he rose in his place to speak the most dramatic moment of the Convention in a few words he told the assembly that, though he believed that he could carry the majority of those present, he would not put the matter to the test of a vote, but would proceed with his amendments. From that moment he was a broken man, and the Parnell tradition a memory.

SINN FEIN'S CLOSE WATCH.

It would be fruitless to speculate as to how far the decision of the Nationalists who refused to support their old leader was the result of influence from without. Undoubtedly Sinn Fein was closely watching the progress of the events in the Regent House, and was determined, if possible, to prevent acceptance by the Convention of any scheme that might fall below the standard of Dominion status.

SUSPICION OF THE PREMIER.

Perhaps the element of opinion between those who followed Mr. Redmond and those who followed Mr. Devlin and the Bishop of Raphoe was a difference in tactics rather than in principle. Mr. Redmond believed that, if he stated the minimum of his demand, he was strong enough in Parliament to defeat any attempt to whittle it down. The other party, less confident in their own power, and, perhaps, more suspicious of the Premier, were convinced of his readiness to take what they conceived to be an unfair advantage of any concessions which they might make. They probably believed it necessary to overstate their claim in order to leave room for its ultimate reduction. They possessed a thorough mistrust of Downing street, which personal acquaintance failed to allay, and their suspicion was not lessened by a rumour that Sir Edward Carson, although he had recently resigned his portfolio, was still a trusted adviser of the Cabinet.

THE CONVENTION'S SCHEME.

The scheme which the Convention produced in answer to its reference carried the authority of but a narrow majority. It represented, however, an agreement between three parties—Moderate Nationalists, Southern Unionists, and Labour—though this did not amount to that "substantial agreement which the Government sought. The very fact that these three parties found a common measure was in itself a remarkable achievement. It demanded from all of them real sacrifice of conviction for the sake of peace in Ireland, and for the relief of Imperial difficulties in a crisis of the war. It was their answer to what Mr. Redmond had described in one of his speeches as the "S.O.S. call of the Empire." To none was the sacrifice greater than to Labour.

SOME GENERAL CONCLUSIONS.

It is not impossible to draw from the story of the failure and of the achievements of the Convention some general conclusions. Disastrous though it was, the miscarriage of the main attempt did not arise from any inherent inability of Irishmen to compromise. Half all the delegates been in a position to feel that they possessed the full confidence of their respective followings throughout Ireland—had they been, in fact, plenipotentiaries bound only to consider the dictates of their own conscience and sense of justice—a settlement would, beyond all doubt, have been achieved. That they were not is a clear indication that the best chance of future success lies in a measure for which the responsibility rests upon no Irish party, possibly in a measure which all Irish parties may feel bound outwardly to condemn.

MORAL COWARDICE.

The Convention gave abundant evidence that where the exigencies of an unnatural political situation did not coerce, Irishmen not only had the capacity, but the will, to adjust their own differences. The Southern Unionists, the Moderate Nationalists and Labour, following an instinct which few members did not possess, took their courage in their hands, and went boldly to the settlement. The Ulster Unionists were not free agents. The Nationalists who followed the Bishop of Raphoe feared Sinn Fein and mistrusted the Government. Neither dared to take the course to which it is difficult to believe that their natural sentiments and desires as generous Irishmen did not attract them. Once more the characteristic Irish vice of moral cowardice (not only a Southern defect) defeated the desired hopes of the Irish people.

EFFECT OF CONSCRIPTION PROPOSAL.

Fate, which had wrecked the great expectations of the Convention, had in store grave difficulties for any immediate Government action upon the report. The necessity for increased man-power in France had become inoperative. The Cabinet learnt that British Labour would not consent to any raising of the age limit unless Ireland was at the same time called upon to do a larger share in the provision of troops. In the emergency of that crisis there may have been little room for choice, and the Government believed themselves forced, even though it might involve the destruction of an amicable settlement, to introduce a measure of conscription in that country. As a result, there arose a wave of indignation, not only against the British Administration, but against all Irishmen who had talked of treating with it. That wave finally submerged all the prospects of the newly-found moderate policy, and, with it, all present hopes of settlement by consent. It left Ireland the battleground of the rival forces of Ulster Unionism and of Sinn Fein, where none would listen to counsels of moderation or of peace. From it the present situation has arisen.

LORD FRENCH AND THE GALLANT DEAD.

A SOLDIER'S TRIBUTE.

Field Marshal Viscount French visited Otham, near Maidstone, on Saturday afternoon to open the Otham war memorial—a recreation ground—and to unveil a cross erected there to the memory of local men who fell in the war.

Lord French said that he was glad to be able to claim some of those heroes as comrades of his own in the field, and he was deeply grateful for the opportunity which had been afforded him of joining with them in paying that last tribute of affection to their memory. "If it is possible," said Lord French, "as I myself personally believe, that they themselves can be present with us to-day, that they can look down from that place of rest and peace which their splendid acts of self-sacrifice has enabled them to enter—if they can look down upon us, I am sure that we will rejoice and be glad in the assurance that they really are at rest and at peace after all their labours, their trials, and their pain" That memorial seemed to him to fulfil two objects. In the first place, it was a visible and tangible expression of their gratitude, love, and admiration for those of their friends and comrades who were no longer with us to mortal ken, but it also handed down their names, with a well-deserved halo of glory around them, to those generations yet to come. He felt quite sure that the example that they had set would be followed by all to the best of their ability.

THE LESSON OF THE MEMORIAL.

The second object which that memorial had in view was that it was a perpetual reminder to all of them, and to the young, and to generations which would come after us, a constant reminder of the great lesson which that monument in its silent eloquence seemed to him to teach. It was a lesson which he believed involved the great principle which, to his mind, was at the root of all Christian teaching, no matter what form of Christianity they had been born to or brought up. It expressed the principle of unselfish, devoted sacrifice to the cause of duty, and the accomplishment of duty for the welfare of their fellow-creatures. Lord French said that he was very much struck the other day with lines he read in a very beautiful book, which was probably well known to them. He thought, perhaps, some of those lines were considerable help and comfort to those who mourned the loss of gallant men. "If we still loved those whom we lose," said Shackeray, "can we altogether lose those whom we love?" "Thank God who assisted me," said Lord French. "When those who went out with such high hopes perished in the trenches or lie buried far away in a nameless grave, it is a comfort to us to feel that they will never return. They never really left; their bright spirits still tenant the hearts of those who love them; they remain with us as on that day when we bade them farewell in all the pride and glory of their high manhood, young and strong, with their brows or mar the youthful gladness of their faces; sickness cannot despoil them; they live imperishably fair, crowned with the garland of immortality."

The cross was dedicated by the Bishop of Croydon, and the "Last Post" and the "Reveille" were sounded, the clear notes of the bugles rising and swelling and dying away over the quiet countryside.

DUBLIN ARTISTS' EXHIBITION.

Miss Estella Solomons and Miss Mary Duncan are to be congratulated on the excellence of the exhibition of paintings and etchings which opens to-day at Mills's Hall, Merrion row, Dublin. It is a faithful reflex of the life and energy of these clever artists, who bring to their art a refreshing vigour that makes it distinctive. Each artist contributes about sixty pictures, so that every phase of their work is fully revealed. Though the collection covers a variety of subjects, it is in every sense attractive, and there are remarkably few instances of hurried or careless work. While not all the pictures are finished, they have been taken pains, though not seeming to, in finishing their pictures. This applies especially to Miss Duncan's portraits, which disclose infinite charm. "The Mirror," showing a young lady adjusting the folds of coque to her cheeks, is a striking picture, boldly and confidently treated; while "Purple and Black," a lady leaning on a mantelpiece, is a good instance of delicate and refined pen drawing. Probably her best portrait is that of Mr. Stephen McKenna, which shows much skill in arrangement, while the subdued tones in which the figure is painted gives to the picture a note of quietude. Of Miss Solomons' larger works, in which a party of ladies are seated at a tea table, and "Winning and Losing," showing three children playing cards, are also examples of the artist's powers of technique and colouring. Besides her portraits, Miss Duncan has many pleasant country scenes, which are treated in a joyous spirit, while there are a few seascapes, which add interest to the collection. Miss Solomons' pictures are mostly concerned with Dublin street scenes. "Coombe Goods" being a delightful effort. Though Miss Solomons has many charming little sketches, mostly representing scraps of scenery in Achill and Donegal, it is her figure studies that are the most notable. It is no mere effort to reproduce faces and figures faithfully. It reveals the character and the temperament of the subject, so that, if one is unacquainted with the person, one can be sure of his mentality. That is true of nearly all Miss Solomons' portraits. They have life and motion, and are not mere photographs. Happily, the collection includes many such portraits, all of which are typical of the artist's style. They represent some well-known figures in Irish life—Miss Alice Milligan, Rev. M. O'Flanagan, Rev. Dr. Brown, Mr. Sean Milroy, Miss Hilda Dowden, Mr. Joseph Campbell, and others. The exhibition is enriched by the collection of etchings which is included amongst Miss Solomons' section. As in the case of Miss Duncan, she concerns herself mostly with familiar scenes in Dublin, and these are treated with obvious sympathy. "A Georgian Doorway in Bolton street" and "An Old Clothes Shop" are characteristic little sketches. The exhibition, which will be open for a fortnight, well deserves to meet with the appreciation it deserves.

DUBLIN PRESBYTERY'S MISSION OF REDEDICATION.

On Saturday evening the ministers, officebearers, and Church workers of the various Presbyterian congregations in Dublin City and suburbs welcomed the missioners who had arrived from Scotland and Ulster. After tea and social intercourse, the Moderator of the Presbytery (Rev. R. K. Hanna) presided, and in the name of the Presbytery welcomed and bid Godspeed to the guests.

The Rev. F. S. Gardiner, who has acted as secretary, and, with Mr. Hugh McNeill, made all arrangements, gave a most interesting statement of the need for such a mission after the war, the desire felt for it, and the spirit of prayer and expectation with which it was about to start, and introduced each of the visitors.

The Revs. D. McIntyre, W. McIntosh Mackay, and Hubert Simpson, in responding to the welcome, gave very interesting addresses, in which they conveyed much information as to the Mission of National Rededication held throughout Scotland in the spring.

In the churches the mission was opened yesterday, and will be continued every evening, closing on Friday night with a Service of Rededication, followed by the Communion. Besides those mentioned, the Rev. A. Boyd Scott, M.C., of Glasgow, and Rev. T. A. Smyth, of Belfast, will take part in the mission.

ESCAPE OF SINN FEIN PRISONERS.

SIX MEN BREAK OUT OF MANCHESTER JAIL.

PRISON WARDER GAGGED AND BOUND.

MYSTERY OF A ROPE LADDER.

Scotland Yard announces that six Irish prisoners escaped from Manchester Prison on Saturday night. Their names are John Doran, Austin Stack, Cornelius Connolly, Patrick M'Carthy, Daniel Walsh, and Pierce Beasley.

HOW THE PRISONERS ESCAPED.

Six Sinn Fein prisoners have made a daring escape from Strangeways Jail, Manchester, says another account. A warder was bound and gagged and placed in a cell. He was stated to be virtually uninjured.

The men who escaped are—John Doran, 30, height 5ft. 5½in., walks with a springing step; Pierce Beasley, M.P., East Kerry, 5ft. 8½in. (he was arrested on May 31 for a seditions speech); Cornelius Connolly, 33, height 5ft. 11in.; Daniel P. Walsh, 37, 5ft. 8in.; Patrick M'Carthy, 5ft. 7in.; Austin Stack, M.P., West Kerry, 39, 5ft 9in. or 8in. (he was wearing thin black and white knickers and a dark greenish grey jersey). He was imprisoned at Belfast in 1918 for taking part in the Sinn Fein movement of that year.

At the men were political prisoners they were allowed to congregate at intervals during the tea hour.

ROPE LADDER MYSTERY.

According to the Sunday Herald, one of the party sprang upon the warder, and brought him to the ground. The other five assisted in binding his hands and feet and gagging him. This done they threw him into

MR. "PUSSYFOOT" JOHNSON

Amendment submitted to the legislatures of the various States by a two-thirds vote of both Houses of Congress. The amendment must secure ratification by at least 36 State Legislatures or three-fourths of all the States. We went before the people and asked them to elect a Congress pledged to submit the question. The people responded by electing sufficient prohibition members of Congress, and by an overwhelming majority—considerably more than two-thirds of both Houses submitted the amendment to the States. Last year we went before the people again, and asked them to elect the thirty-six State legislators to ratify this amendment. Instead of electing 36, they sent in 46 pledged to ratify, and thirteen of them adopted the amendment without a single dissenting vote. By the terms of this amendment it comes into operation one year after the 36th State State ratifies—that is, on the 16th January next. In the meantime Congress, as a war measure, has enacted temporary war-time prohibition. This will continue during the period of the war and demobilisation. America is technically at war with Germany as she has not yet signed the Peace Treaty. Therefore, war-time prohibition continues. Whether it will continue to the 16th January or not I do not know. There may be a return to liquor-selling in America for a brief period prior to the 16th January, but that will only be a temporary matter."

Asked if the American Anti-Saloon League was out to secure Scandi-wide prohibition, "Pussyfoot" replied: "Yes and no. There is in course of formation a world League against alcoholism. The United Kingdom Alliance, and some of the Scottish and Irish temperance organisations are in this League. The Anti-Saloon League of America, which has large financial support, will not do a single thing in any country unless the temperance organisations of that country want it and ask for it. I came over here from America on the invitation and at the request of British temperance organisations. I intended to stay three months, but I have stayed a year, and during that time I have not made any speech, and none of my American friends has any speeches, unless at the request of some British, Scottish, or Irish temperance society."

Asked what he intended to do in Ireland, Mr. Johnson replied, smiling: "Well, I guess I don't want to undertake to settle the Irish question. But we believe in the right of self-determination on the drink question. Our whole movement is built upon the people settling this question for themselves. We never asked our Congress to enact prohibition: we merely asked it to let the people decide. We start with local option. When we get local option we get a chance to show our goods. When we have prohibition in one county or town, it is an example to the other places, and they become wetter or severe the same beneficial results.

"Do you believe in having the prohibition areas large or small? Would you, for instance, take the whole of Belfast or Dublin as one area?" "I am not sufficiently acquainted with your conditions in Ireland to give an opinion; but, as a general principle, we have found in America the larger the area under prohibition the better the results. We started with small areas, and multiplied them. Even in a limited area prohibition gets a chance to show what it can do. All we want is a chance to show the benefits which arise from our policy."

THE QUESTION OF COMPENSATION.

"How do you deal with the matter of compensating those engaged in the liquor traffic for the loss of business, if any?"

"That," replied Mr. Johnson, "is a matter of detail. In America, for four years it has been our law, as interpreted by the Supreme Court, that the people have the right to stop the sale of liquor anywhere and at any time without any moral or legal obligation for compensation. No every dollar invested in the liquor traffic during the past thirty years has been invested with that knowledge. The investor simply takes his chance.

"There is another factor in this compensation question which would appeal to us when the question would arise—it never did arise so as to become an issue. We would say: Yes, let us compensate everybody that has suffered from this thing: let us compensate the woman who has lost her husband through drink; let us compensate the children who have lost their father; let us compensate the taxpayer for the expense he has had, for, if you get 30 millions in revenue from drink, you have to spend 60 millions upon its effects. Let us compensate everybody if we are to compensate anybody. Why should we single out the men who have got rich out of it and compensate them?"

"It is sometimes stated that American Labour is against prohibition. What is your experience?" "Our Labour is organised by crafts. Some of these crafts, like bar-tenders and brewery workers, are wet; others, like miners, carpenters, blacksmiths, butchers, meat packers, are dry. When the question came up the bar-tenders and brewery workers raised a great row and tried to pretend that they represented organised Labour, but they only represented their own craft. If it had not been for Labour, there would have been no prohibition in America, for they have the majority of votes. There are Labour organisations in the United States for prohibition."

"Have you any information regarding the attitude of Labour in Great Britain towards prohibition?"

"Well, the other night in Manchester invitations were sent out indiscriminately to about one hundred and sixty Labour leaders and officials, and they met me at Milton Hall, and we thrashed this thing out. I never met a finer body of men. Almost the whole body of sentiment of that meeting was in favour of the local veto. Even some who were not ready for prohibition were ready to demand the local veto, and let the people decide."

"What do you think of the chances of the local veto in Ireland?" "The people of Ireland are qualified to settle this thing themselves if given a chance. They are not Africans. The Irish, in my opinion, are—taken as a whole—one of the finest people on the face of the earth. If anyone is qualified to settle it, they are. The Irish settle all questions for us over in America. If it were not for the Irish," he added, laughingly, "what would we do—for policemen, for instance?"

"I see complaints in the newspapers that Irish people in America are unable to get drink under prohibition, while poor people are not?"

"In America some of the States prohibit the possession of liquor. There is in existence in America one hundred million gallons of whiskey, or a normal supply for eight or nine months. Some of it is in warehouses and some of it is hidden. So long as that is in existence it will come to the surface here and there, as there is no law against a man's drinking it. But it will all be gone in a year or so. Until the 16th January, the owners of liquor can export, and they are exporting it. I see by your papers that you are getting a lot of it over here. I prophesy a pretty lively export of whiskey from now to the 16th January, but it is merely a matter of time until all the stuff is disposed of."

Questioned regarding the use to which distilleries, breweries, and public-houses are now put in America, Mr. Johnson replied: "Of course, we have not been making any whiskey, except for munition purposes, for the past two years. Our distilleries, and breweries also, have now turned into other channels of trade. The first big brewery shut up in West Virginia in 1912 was immediately turned into a meat-packing house, and within a year that brewery was employing four times as many men, paying higher wages per man, and making more money than ever it did as a brewery. There has been a remarkable development also in the grape business, which should appeal to France and Spain. Before the war grapes were selling at 30 dollars a ton. When prohibition was enacted it was thought there would be a slump in grapes, as no wine would be made; but, as a matter of fact, there has been such an abnormal demand for grape juice that grapes are now 200 dollars a ton."

Referring to his visit to Finland and Esthonia, Mr. Johnson said that Finland was now dry. Esthonia was embodying prohibition in its new constitution; Livonia, when it cleared out the German barons, would despatch the German beer also; and Norway had gone dry by a majority of 140,000. Prohibition was the coming system. In conclusion, Mr. Johnson said that he was looking forward with keen interest to his meeting in the Gregg Hall, Dublin, on Monday afternoon. He hoped to give some information about the world-wide movement for prohibition, and reply to any questions which might be asked.

Smoking a big cigar, Mr. Johnson then said good-bye, for, if he believes in the prohibition of drink, he still holds tight to his smoke.

DRINKS IN NEW YORK.

ALLEGED ANTI-" DRY " CONSPIRACY.

The New York Correspondent of The Times telegraphed as follows last Friday:—

Having read the evidence given yesterday by an agent of the Department of Justice following his arrest on charges of corruption in connection with the prohibition enforcement legislation, New Yorkers are beginning to understand how it has happened that they have been able to obtain drinks with such ease since prohibition came into force.

According to Mr. William J. Flynn, in charge of the Special Agents of the Department of Justice, a huge conspiracy has been discovered between officers of the law and hotel and restaurant proprietors in and around New York. Enormous bribes have been accepted, it is alleged, as the result of which violators of the law obtained immunity from prosecution or else received warning when their premises were about to be raided. Hundreds of thousands of dollars must have been paid in bribes, Flynn states.

McCarver, the man whose evidence was heard yesterday, mentioned as being concerned in the conspiracy names of many highly placed persons, including a prominent Republican politician who is a candidate for high office, a member of the District Attorney's staff, two well-known city lawyers, several politicians, and various officials holding some of the most important posts in the City Administration. Other names mentioned in the conspiracy are those of the proprietors of some of the best known social resorts of Greater New York.

FATAL ACCIDENT AT GENERAL POST OFFICE.

INQUEST ON TWO MEN KILLED.

Dr. L. A. Byrne, City Coroner, held an inquest at Jervis street Hospital, Dublin, on Saturday relative to the death of John Leddin, labourer, 43 years, 113 Lower Gardiner street, and Henry M'Mahon, labourer, 40 years, 97 Lower Gardiner street, who were killed by the fall of a floor on the previous day whilst engaged at work in the demolition of part of the G.P.O., Lower Sackville street.

Dr. Good appeared on behalf of J. and P. Good, contractors; and Mr. P. O'Reilly (of Messrs. Lidwell and O'Reilly) on behalf of the next-of-kin; and Mr. P. Coll, of the Treasury Solicitor's Office, for the Board of Works.

Mrs. Mary Leddin identified the remains of her husband. They had four children.

Patrick Kane, 97 Lower Gardiner street, stated that he was working with deceased, who was standing with one foot on the wall, the thought, and another on the floor. He heard someone shout that the floor was giving way. He drew back to the wall immediately, and before the others could move they were precipitated to the floor below. The portion of the floor on which they were employed was about 10 feet square, supported on two sides by walls and on the other by iron girders, while the other end had been taken down by the workmen. On top of the floor, from the wall to the iron girders, were two planks, on which the men were supposed to stand and break the stone now only speaking for himself—with sledge hammers the floor from the girders; but for some reason unknown the deceased men stepped on the floor and engaged in breaking it.

In reply to Mr. O'Reilly witness said that they were working on the floor from the day before, but Leddin only started at 11 o'clock on the day of the accident. His instructions were to stand on the planks and break the floor from there. These instructions were given him by the ganger, Mr. Barton.

The Foreman (Sir John Irwin)—You clearly understood you were to stand on the planks? Yes; for my part I did.

Richard Rooney, another workman, stated that he was working on the same floor, 25 feet from where the deceased were.

Mr. O'Reilly—In connection with this work, were you told to take any precaution? None whatever. Rooney added that it was impossible to be on the planks all the time.

Dr. John M. Ryan, house surgeon, Jervis street hospital, stated that Leddin and M'Mahon were both dead when brought to the hospital on the previous day. He described the extensive injuries which he found on post-mortem. In the case of Leddin he found a fracture of the skull. He was due to internal hemorrhage caused by injuries received through the body being severely crushed. In the case of M'Mahon, the skull was fractured in various places, and he had other injuries. Death was due to fracture of the skull and laceration of the brain, caused by a heavy mass falling on the head. In both instances the injuries could have been caused by a mass of concrete falling from a height on the deceased.

Peter Barton, ganger for Messrs. Good, contractors, deposed that his instructions to the men were to get two planks from the girder to the wall and use their hammers, breaking down the concrete in front. He saw the men working from the planks.

The jury found a verdict in accordance with the medical evidence, and that the occurrence was accidental. They added a rider sympathising with the relatives of the deceased.

SELFRIDGE AND CO., LTD.

To-day the London Joint City and Midland Bank open a subscription list for 600,000 Six per cent. (Income Tax free up to 5s. in the £) Cumulative Preference Shares of £1 each at par in Selfridge and Co., Ltd., London. The company has recently acquired premises in Oxford street adjoining the present stores, and the building of the extensions has already commenced. When these are completed the Oxford street frontage will run from Duke street to Orchard street, a length of 525 feet, and back to Somerset street. The prospectus shows that the profits during the past eight years have risen from £50,247 to £322,864. The dividend on the Ordinary Shares in 1919 was 7 per cent., free of tax. As the new shares, free of tax, give a return equivalent to over 8½ per cent., and thus form a desirable industrial investment, and as prior consideration will be given to applications from holders of the existing Preference Shares of the company, there is very little reason to doubt that the issue will meet with a popular reception by investors. The list will open to-day and close on or before Thursday next. (Prospectus Page 7.)

SHALDERS' TEXTILES, LTD.

This company has been formed to acquire the business of A. O. Shalders and Sons, Ltd., wholesale woollen, worsted, mohair, alpaca, silk and cotton merchants, of Bradford, Glasgow, London, and Dublin. The business was founded in Bradford in 1858, and incorporated as a private limited company in 1914. In recent years the firm has formed an extensive foreign and Colonial connection, and nearly one-third of the total turnover of the business done is derived from trade done abroad. The capital is £150,000 in 80,000 7½ per cent. Cumulative Participating Preference Shares and 70,000 Ordinary Shares, the former ranking for 25 per cent. of the profits after 10 per cent. has been paid on the Ordinary. 50,000 of both classes of shares are offered at par by the Anglo-Scottish Investment Trust. The auditors' certificate shows profits, before charging interest on loans and overdrafts, excess profit duty, income tax, and managing directors' remuneration, ranging from £7,315 in 1912 to £31,045 in 1918, and it is estimated that the profits for 1919 will equal those of the previous year. It is also estimated that on this basis the profits will pay over 8 per cent. on the Preference and 12 per cent. on the Ordinary Share capital issued. The subscription list will open to-day, and close on or before Friday next. (Prospectus Page 7.)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

POOR PARSONS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Your leading article in yesterday's paper on "Poor Parsons" ought to make almost every Protestant layman in Ireland bow his head with shame. If we are to acknowledge to the world that we put our spiritual welfare at such a low price that we are unable to pay our ministers of religion a living wage—not to say the wage of an unskilled dock labourer—surely we ought not to complain of those who ask, "Is Christianity a failure?" Failure to keep the flag flying in every separate parish in our island is apparently a frank admission that there is something radically wrong with our Church, and amalgamation is a remedy that ought never to be resorted to except in the most extreme cases, and especially where the parishes are geographically suited to it—that is to say, where every house in both parishes is within reasonable distance of the rectory. Those of us who are privileged to attend the Synods know the bitterness that exists when amalgamation is contemplated, but we cannot but admire the spirit that animates that feeling, for we all like to have the undivided attention of our clergyman to the various little details of our lives.

To enjoy these blessings, though, we must rid our minds of the thought that we are living in the days of Oliver Goldsmith. It is true, of course, that we expect our pastor to be "a man to all the country dear"; but, with the present price of beef and boots, we can hardly expect him to be "passing rich with forty pounds a year." There is only one remedy, therefore, and that is to find the money to pay for the parsons at the very least a living wage; so let us face the situation like men, and Christian men too, and raise the money. Sacrifices must be made all round. The layman must deprive his purse, and, if the farmers and traders, who have certainly reaped a fair share of war profits, cannot bear the paltry extra burden, they will have the satisfaction of knowing that they "go under" in a worthy cause. If a clergyman finds time hanging heavily on his hands, he, too, can console himself with the thought that the man is made for the parish and not the parish for the man.

The Central Emergency Fund is a most deserving one, but it surely is horrible to feel that our clergy, who have as much right to work and be fairly paid for it as anyone else, are partially depending on charity for a living; for you can call their system of remuneration nothing less. A very suitable object for such a fund would be the upkeep of unnecessarily large houses which are thrust upon many unwilling parsons, whose responsibilities in such are a crying scandal.

To put the matter in a nutshell, let each one of us add at least 50 per cent., and in some cases 100 per cent., to his present annual contributions to the Sustentation Fund—or, perhaps, what would be fairer, give about 2½ per cent. on our poor law valuation. We ought to look upon this as a solemn duty, and what more worthy duty can we have than that of an endeavour to keep our old Church from falling into partial decay? If such an unthinkable calamity should happen, we laymen alone will be responsible, and then what will the substitute be?

I would suggest that the laity of every parish in Ireland meet together and appoint a finance committee to go round and knock the necessary imagination into each of us. If a fair response be made to such a call, there ought to be sufficient money, by pooling the amounts, to give every clergyman in Ireland a living wage; and, perhaps, some day we may look forward with pleasure to the partitioning—if one dare use the word—rather than the amalgamation of parishes. There would be no more time-serving as a thank-offering for our success in the late war and for our glorious harvest—to start such a good work.—Yours, etc.,

"PROFITEERING" IN IRELAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—While the "Profiteering" Act is put in full force in Great Britain, where prices are tumbling more and more daily, and where they have had some 3,500 convictions already, nothing is being done to enforce the provisions in Ireland, where "profiteering," naked and unashamed, stalks the land. Your paper has repeatedly, in leading articles, drawn the attention of the Government to this, yet nothing is done, and the old traditions of being informers is so repugnant to the Irish that they suffer themselves to be robbed sooner than prosecute.

Before the war £1 per barrel was the recognised profit on porter. He was counted a good man that made it. Now £10 is the minimum on each barrel, and spirits, fixed by the trade at 1s. 4d. per glass, are charged 1s. 11d. Yet, when controlled at 2s. 8d., was commonly sold for 3s. 8d. and 4s. per lb. The Food Controller announced that when he would take off the control it would sell at 2s. 4d. and 2s., and probably, in connection with this work, were you told to take any precaution? None whatever. Rooney added that it was impossible to be on the planks all the time.

Dr. John M. Ryan, house surgeon, Jervis street hospital, stated that Leddin and M'Mahon were both dead when brought to the hospital on the previous day. THE USE OF WORDS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Far be it from me to dispute the soundness—the "practical soundness"—of "K.'s" suggestion that more frequent reading of the Scriptures in our beautiful Authorised Version would be a useful check on the tendency to incorrect speech that now so widely prevails. When, however, "K." gives, as a glaring instance of the looseness that has now become possible, Lord Fisher's misuse of "whom" for "who"—"a mistake that hits you in the eye"—he apparently forgets that the Authorised Version is itself not free from a notable lapse into the same error. It occurs, in "practically" the same words, in three parallel passages (Matthew xvi. 13, Mark viii. 27, and Luke ix. 18), "Whom do men say that I am?" The blunder no more hit the translators in the eye in 1611 than it did the Editor of The Times in 1919. Even in the misuse of words, it would seem, there is nothing new under the sun.

By the way, it is possible to be quite as badly hit in the eye by correct as by incorrect speech, when lapse of years has blunted the sense of a too current word. Only two days ago I opened a volume of sermons by Hugh Stowell—a once celebrated, but possibly now forgotten, name—and got a severe blow from the opening sentence of his sermon on the text, "And Abraham . . . took the knife to slay his son" for the preacher's introductory remark reads as follows:—"The scene which is here presented to our view is awfully interesting." (Date of publication 1837!) How many years later would such an introduction have been possible? I think it would be "awfully interesting" to know.—Yours, etc.,

HOUSING IN IRELAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—If I rightly interpreted your report of the important meeting held in Cork last week, a gigantic scheme of housing is contemplated for the benefit of the artisan class. For example, one speaker pointed out that the Act would be workable in Belfast by reason of the fact that there dwelt there large numbers of highly-paid workmen who could afford to pay the due proportion of the economic rent; whereas in other parts of the country a contribution from the local rates would be necessary to meet the needs of the "poorer-paid" working classes there.

In no speech could I find any trace of the Act being made applicable to the middle-class people, whose share in this beneficent scheme will apparently be to pay half the workingman's rent, as well, I take it, as that gentleman's share of the local rates (payable in respect of the annual value of the ordinary house, but which would apparently be foregone in the case of Corporation-financed schemes). Considering that the workingman is now much better off than is the clerk and the small shopkeeper, would it not be fairer for the working classes to provide out of their high "war" wages the capital necessary to subsidise houses for the "new poor"?—Yours, etc.,

"A Stonet Broke."

Dublin, October 25th, 1919.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—That music is the handmaid of religion as Dr. Cowan should so erroneously describe the case I presented to last Wednesday's conference on behalf of the towns of Ireland as being attended by the taint of "mendicancy," shows how necessary it is that the intricacies of the Irish Housing Act should be fully probed. In the Committee proceedings on Thursday I had the opportunity of proving that Tipperary—as the saying is—"will not be outdone" by Dr. Cowan—is in reality prepared to shoulder a much heavier burden to solve the problem than the more favoured towns in which the Act, as it now stands, can be administered.—Yours, etc.,

T. Dawson.

MUSIC IN DUBLIN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I read your leading article on "Music in Dublin," in Saturday's issue, with very great interest. The state of affairs is really deplorable. What is to be done? As the root of the matter is the absence of a proper concert hall. Surely something can be done to remedy the present state of affairs? Owing to the lack of a hall, all the big concerts have to be held in the Theatre Royal (our own Opera House, of course, precludes the great majority of the music-loving public from attending. One would have thought that a fine hall would have been erected in Sackville street, instead of a new picture house, which has been erected. What not some of our leading citizens take the matter up and call a public meeting? I am sure that, if a fund were opened, it would be generally supported.—Yours, etc.,

PROPORTIONAL REPRESENTATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The letter signed "Elector," in your issue of yesterday, indicates that some confusion still exists in the public mind as to the responsibilities which are being accepted respectively by the Local Government Board and by this Society. In connection with the technical training of returning officers and their staffs my Committee understand that the Local Government Board are making arrangements for complete model elections at various centres. Upon the other hand, this Society has been compelled to accept responsibility for the education of candidates and persons interested in the conduct thereof in pursuance of its campaign for that purpose, the Society has already held a number of meetings and conducted public model elections under the auspices of local authorities in various parts of the country. A further programme for almost sixty similar meetings has been arranged in towns in all parts of Ireland.

It is, perhaps, desirable to add that the cost of this very expensive campaign of education falls entirely upon voluntary funds.—Yours, etc.,

E. A. Aston, Secretary.

SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' HELP SOCIETY.

MONTHLY MEETING OF EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

The Executive Committee of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Help Society held their monthly meeting in the Mansion House on Saturday—present:—Mr. J. A. Maconchy (in the chair), Lady Arnott, D.B.E.; Mrs. Fetherstonhaugh, Mrs. Gaisford St. Lawrence, Miss McDonnell, Miss Meade, Miss Craigie-Halkett, Mr. F. Beady, C.B.; Mr. A. E. C. Hamilton, and Col. Dobbs, O.B.E., Hon. Sec. Apologies for absence were received from Mrs. Godfrey Knox, Lady Thomson, Captain Cumbie, C.B.E., R.N., Lieutenant-Colonel Steele, Brigadier-General Sir J. A. Byrne, K.B.E.; Messrs E. White, H. D. Pack-Beresford, and S. H. Douglas.

The following reports were received:—

Dublin City and County—703 city cases, including 118 new cases, were dealt with, and £150 1s. 8d. expended in relief of 130 cases; 41 new cases have been referred from the "problem." The policeman is the only one that gets his little wants fairly right; with everyone else it is, "Get what you can by them—they will not prosecute."

It is said, again, that, if bacon was not held up, but simply controlled, it would fall to 1s. 6d. per lb. It is the storing principle that is wrong. Thousands of tons of bacon rotted in the stores in Liverpool and Bristol by being detained there. Sugar got alive and maggoty, and, between these things and the perfect immunity of "profiteers" in Ireland, the middle class and the poor are made almost to starve. Unless the Government enforce the Act, and, if necessary, appoint proper persons to administer it in every district, who will go straight at the prices and profits, not alone of the retailers, but of the wholesale dealers, there may be bad work during the winter or spring. Prices are soaring with us, but tumbling like a pack of cards in England. No wonder that shopkeepers here think were poor are now rich, buying houses and lands and cattle. A shop that was scarcely saleable at a couple of hundred five years ago went for £2,500 the other day in a little village.—Yours, etc.,

THE USE OF WORDS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Far be it from me to dispute the soundness—the "practical soundness"—of "K.'s" suggestion that more frequent reading of the Scriptures in our beautiful Authorised Version would be a useful check on the tendency to incorrect speech that now so widely prevails. When, however, "K." gives, as a glaring instance of the looseness that has now become possible, Lord Fisher's misuse of "whom" for "who"—"a mistake that hits you in the eye"—he apparently forgets that the Authorised Version is itself not free from a notable lapse into the same error. It occurs, in "practically" the same words, in three parallel passages (Matthew xvi. 13, Mark viii. 27, and Luke ix. 18), "Whom do men say that I am?" The blunder no more hit the translators in the eye in 1611 than it did the Editor of The Times in 1919. Even in the misuse of words, it would seem, there is nothing new under the sun.

By the way, it is possible to be quite as badly hit in the eye by correct as by incorrect speech, when lapse of years has blunted the sense of a too current word. Only two days ago I opened a volume of sermons by Hugh Stowell—a once celebrated, but possibly now forgotten, name—and got a severe blow from the opening sentence of his sermon on the text, "And Abraham . . . took the knife to slay his son" for the preacher's introductory remark reads as follows:—"The scene which is here presented to our view is awfully interesting." (Date of publication 1837!) How many years later would such an introduction have been possible? I think it would be "awfully interesting" to know.—Yours, etc.,

HOUSING IN IRELAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—If I rightly interpreted your report of the important meeting held in Cork last week, a gigantic scheme of housing is contemplated for the benefit of the artisan class. For example, one speaker pointed out that the Act would be workable in Belfast by reason of the fact that there dwelt there large numbers of highly-paid workmen who could afford to pay the due proportion of the economic rent; whereas in other parts of the country a contribution from the local rates would be necessary to meet the needs of the "poorer-paid" working classes there.

In no speech could I find any trace of the Act being made applicable to the middle-class people, whose share in this beneficent scheme will apparently be to pay half the workingman's rent, as well, I take it, as that gentleman's share of the local rates (payable in respect of the annual value of the ordinary house, but which would apparently be foregone in the case of Corporation-financed schemes). Considering that the workingman is now much better off than is the clerk and the small shopkeeper, would it not be fairer for the working classes to provide out of their high "war" wages the capital necessary to subsidise houses for the "new poor"?—Yours, etc.,

BAGGOTRATH CHURCH.

The Archbishop of Dublin was the special preacher at the Harvest Festival Service in Baggotrath Church, Dublin, yesterday. Preaching from the text, "Jesus answered them, My Father worketh hitherto, and I work" (John v., 17), His Grace spoke of the creative energy of God. The revelation of that energy which was found in the first chapter of Genesis was not a complete revelation. The completion was given in the words of the text, for they meant that the great energy of God was ceaselessly at work throughout the ages. And every human activity on earth, from the highest to the lowest, had some work to accomplish. According to the laws of God, they had to work, and then they got the blessings which they needed. When they prayed "Give us this day our daily bread," God answered by enabling them to work for their living; and so it was their duty to offer up thanks for the great blessings with which they were surrounded, and to seek the continuance of their lives possible. They were told to seek first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and that all things would be added unto them. Amongst the ways of seeking the Kingdom was by assisting the great missionary activities of the Church of God. Prior to the sermon His Grace intimated that the offertory that day was on behalf of the Church Missionary Society, which he heartily commended as having been the means of winning whole nations from barbarism to civilisation, and from paganism of the most degrading form to Christianity. If there was a Christian institution in the highest sense of the term, it was the Church Missionary Society, and none was more worthy of support by them as an expression of their thankfulness to God at this harvest season.

MAGDALEN ASYLUM, GLOUCESTER STREET, DUBLIN.

The claims of this charitable institution were powerfully advocated yesterday before a large congregation in St. Francis Xavier's Church, Upper Gardiner street, by the Rev. Charles J. Doyle, S.J., who said that the object of the asylum had been doing a great work of mercy and charity in that it afforded a refuge and a home to poor women who were the victims of the greatest misfortune that fell to the lot of mankind. What the work meant for those otherwise unhappy creatures no one could calculate, as it was incalculable. The Sisters of Charity, who, in the true Christian spirit, devoted themselves to the carrying on of the institution, find themselves in these dear times more pressed than ever before by the financial difficulty. During the thirty years of its existence of the asylum many thousands of sinning and despairing souls have found shelter and salvation, and it would be a misfortune if for want of funds the good Sisters were obliged to turn away from the door any poor girl that sought admission. There are at present 120 inmates, and, although they contribute to their own keep by work in the laundry, food and clothing and laundry materials are so dear that the good Sisters cannot make ends meet. In addition there is a debt of £5,000 hanging over the

ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.

The Company has been formed to acquire and take over as a going concern and develop the well-known business of A. O. Shalders and Son, Limited, merchants and dealers in woollen, worsted, mohair, alpaca, silk, cotton, and other fabrics, now carried on at 11 and 13 Piccadilly, Bradford, 10 Golden square, London, and in Glasgow, Dublin, and elsewhere. The business is largely an export one, and for December, 1918, and the net profits accruing since that date will form part of the assets acquired by the Company.

The business was established in Bradford in 1854 by the late Mr. Alfred Owen Shalders, and was carried on by him until his death in 1895. Since this date the business was carried on by Mr. Julian Shalders and Mr. Frank Albert Shalders (both grandsons of the founder) until 31st March, 1914, when the firm was converted into a Private Limited Company with a cash working capital of £35,010.

The firm of A. O. Shalders and Son, Limited, is widely known in this country and abroad as dealers in merchants in the high-class woollen and textile goods which are principally manufactured in the West Riding of Yorkshire, and numbers amongst its customers most of the leading houses in the trade.

The firm has in recent years considerably developed its trade in the British Colonies, France, Belgium, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, South America, and other foreign countries, with the result that the present export business of the Company now amounts to well over £100,000 per annum out of a turnover of nearly £500,000 per annum. The export trade in woollen and textile goods has, during the past few years, been a most valuable and lucrative one with the countries above named. It is well known that the demand for these goods has fallen far short of the supply owing to the War, and the Directors have every reason to believe that, in consequence of the world-wide popularity of the high-class woollen and textile goods manufactured in the Bradford district and to the valuable connections opened up abroad by the Vendors, the increased trade to be done should prove a most remunerative source of revenue to the Company.

Mr. Julian A. B. Shalders is a Director of the Vendor Company, and holds 30,000 Preference Shares of £1 each and 5,953 Ordinary Shares of £1 each in the Vendor Company. Mr. G. R. Bulmer is a Director of Messrs. Mac Queen and also Directors of the Vendor Company, and hold 20 Ordinary Shares each therein. Mr. Bulmer has been with the Vendor Company now for 20 years, and is joining the Company as Vice-Chairman and Joint Managing Director.

Mr. Morrell has been acting as Manager of the Shipping Department, and is largely responsible for the success of the Company's export trade.

The Company has also all the staff of the Vendor Company, who thoroughly understand the business.

The firm carries a very large stock, which has been purchased at extremely reasonable prices, and is now housed with two large warehouses in Bradford, which are held on favourable leases.

Mr. Juan A. B. Shalders and Mr. George R. Bulmer have agreed to act as Joint Managing Directors of the Company for five years.

The following certificate has been received from Messrs. E. Layton Bennett, Sons, and Co., Chartered Accountants:—

31 and 32 Broad street avenue, E.C. 2, 30th September, 1919.

To the Directors of SHALDERS TEXTILES, LIMITED.
Gentlemen,—We have examined the books and Accounts of A. O. Shalders and Son, Limited, for the five years ending 30th November, 1918, and we certify that the net profits before charging interest on loans, depreciation, excess profits duty, income tax, and managing director's remuneration have been steadily expansion in profits is being continued.

For the year ending 30th November, 1913	8,535 18 11
For the year ending 30th November, 1914	4,768 10 10
For the year ending 30th November, 1917	17,771 10 10
For the year ending 30th November, 1917	10,374 18 4
For the year ending 30th November, 1917	17,705 9 2
For the year ending 30th November, 1918	31,048 12 1

The net profits for the year ending 30th November, 1918, the assets appearing in the Vendors' books were:

Stock	£85,837 19 10
Furniture and Fittings	417 8 6
Sundry debtors	89,358 4 6
	175,563 12 10
Less—Sundry Creditors (including the sum of £16,000 reserved to meet an estimated liability for Excess Profits Duty to 30th November, 1918, which has since been settled for £15,099 4s.)	137,493 15 5
Excess of Assets over Liabilities	38,069 17 5

In addition there are:
Profits earned from 1st December, 1918, to 31st August, 1919, estimated by the Managing Directors ... £25,000 0 0
Additional working Capital to be provided by the present issue after payment of the expenses of this issue, estimated at £15,000 ... £5,000 0 0
£38,069 17 5

We are, yours faithfully,
E. LAYTON BENNETT, SONS, and CO.

The balance certificate no provision has been made for the valuable goodwill of the firm, which stands at £55,000.

Mr. Julian A. B. Shalders and Mr. George R. Bulmer have reported to the Board as follows:—

SHALDERS TEXTILES, LIMITED. 30th September, 1919.

We beg to report that the turnover of A. O. Shalders and Son, Limited, with the exception of 1914, was a bad year throughout the trade owing to the commencement of the war and the difficulties which it had to contend with, has shown a steady increase, and progressive increases. The turnover now amounts to nearly £500,000 per annum, and we have every reason to believe that, with the additional working capital which will be provided by the proposed issue, the Company should be able to command a turnover of considerably £300,000 per annum in the near future, with a corresponding increase in the profits of the Company.

Due to the large number of customers on the Company's books and the heavy stock carried by the Company it is impossible for stock to be taken more than once a year, but we estimate that the net profits before charging interest on loans and overdrafts, excess profits duty, and income tax for the year ending 30th November, 1919, will fully equal those earned for the year ending 30th November, 1918, and we are taking this sum as a basis and after providing for interest on loans and overdrafts, excess profits duty, and Managing Director's remuneration, there should be available a sum sufficient to pay the dividends on the Preference Shares Capital issued, and over 12 per cent. on the Ordinary Share Capital issued, and this we believe to be a conservative estimate.

Under the terms of the Articles of Association of the Company at 7 shares, but the Directors are entitled to pay a commission not exceeding 10 per cent. on the amount of £60,000 of the whole of this issue has been underwritten at a commission of 5% and an overriding commission of 2½ per cent. on the Ordinary Shares issued in excess of the minimum.

The Directors will proceed to allotment immediately on the closing of the lists.

The following contracts have been entered into by the Company:—

(1) An Agreement made the 21st day of October, 1919, between A. O. Shalders and Son, Limited, of the one part, and Shalders Textiles, Limited, of the other part, whereby A. O. Shalders and Son, Limited, agree to sell to Shalders Textiles, Limited, its business as a going concern for the sum of £50,000, payable as to £50,000 in cash, £30,000 in 20,000 Preference Shares of £1 each fully paid, and £20,000 in 20,000 Ordinary Shares of £1 each fully paid.

(2) An Agreement made the 21st day of October, 1919, between the Company of the one part, and Herman Morrell of the other part, whereby the said Herman Morrell agrees to act as Manager of the Shipping Department, and to be employed by the Company for five years at a salary of £1,000 per annum, and from the date of allotment of the shares hereby offered for subscription at a salary of £1,500 per annum, and for the like period with two large warehouses in Bradford, which are held on favourable leases.

(3) An Agreement made the 21st day of October, 1919, between the Company of the one part, and Julian A. B. Shalders of the other part, whereby the said Julian A. B. Shalders agrees to act as Joint Managing Director of the Company for five years at a salary of £3,000 per annum, and from the date of allotment of the shares hereby offered for subscription at a salary of £4,000 per annum, and for the like period with two large warehouses in Bradford, which are held on favourable leases.

(4) An Agreement, dated the 21st day of October, 1919, between the Company of the one part, and George Robinson Bulmer of the other part, whereby the said George R. Bulmer agrees to act as Joint Managing Director of the Company for five years at a salary of £3,000 per annum, and from the date of allotment of the shares hereby offered for subscription at a salary of £4,000 per annum, and for the like period with two large warehouses in Bradford, which are held on favourable leases.

(5) An Agreement, dated the 21st day of October, 1919, between the Company of the one part, and the Anglo-Scottish Investment Trust, Limited, of the other part, whereby the Company agrees to issue to the Anglo-Scottish Investment Trust, Limited, 50,000 Preference Shares of £1 each and 50,000 Ordinary Shares of £1 each, and the Anglo-Scottish Investment Trust, Limited, agrees to offer for subscription on behalf of the Company as Vendors' Agents the 50,000 Preference Shares and 50,000 Ordinary Shares, and to underwrite 15,000 Preference Shares and 15,000 Ordinary Shares.

The Articles of Association provide that the qualification of a Director shall be 7 shares, but that no Director shall be required to hold more than 1,000 shares.

The Directors will be entitled to such remuneration as may be determined by the Company in general meeting.

Copies of the above-mentioned Contracts, together with the Memorandum and Articles of Association of the Company, and the Auditors' Certificate, may be inspected at the offices of the Company at 11 and 13 Piccadilly, Bradford, and 10 Golden square, London, W., on any day while the List remains open, between the hours of 11 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Copies of the Memorandum of Association of the Company, and a Prospectus in the form in which it will be issued, may be obtained from the Offices of the Company at 11 and 13 Piccadilly, Bradford, and 10 Golden square, London, W., or from the Bankers, Brokers, Solicitors, and Auditors.

Applications for Shares should be made on the accompanying form and forwarded with a separate cheque for the amount payable on each application to the London Joint City and Midland Bank, Ltd., 5 Threadneedle street, E.C. 2, or any of its Branches.

If no allotment is made the deposit will be returned in full, and where the number of Shares allotted is less than the number applied for, the balance of the deposit will be applied towards the amount due on allotment or the final instalment. Failure to pay any instalment when due will render the previous payments liable to forfeiture. Interest at 5 per cent. per annum will be charged on instalments in arrear.

Prospectuses and forms of application may be obtained from the London Joint City and Midland Bank, Limited, 5 Threadneedle street, E.C. 2, or any of its Branches, from Messrs. Hare and Sons, 24 Throgmorton street, E.C. 2, or at the Registered Office of the Company.

On 29th November, 1919	13s. 6d.	" "
	£1 0 0

Payment in full under discount at the rate of £4 per cent. per annum may be made on allotment. The Preference Shares will rank for dividend half-yearly on 1st April and 1st October, the first Dividend on the Shares now offered for subscription will be calculated on the amounts paid up from the respective due dates of the instalments up to 30th March next and be payable (free of Income-tax up to 6s. in the £) on 1st April, 1920.

PROSPECTUS.

The Company was established in 1908 to carry on the business of General Merchants, and the Store in Oxford street was opened for business in March, 1909.

The net Profits have steadily increased each succeeding year since the trading commenced, as is shown by the following Certificate of the Auditors of the Company:—

The Directors of SELFRIDGE AND CO., LTD. 16th October, 1919.

Gentlemen,—We have audited the Accounts of your Company since its formation, and certify that the Profits, as shown by the annexed Accounts during the 5 years ended 31st January, 1919, before providing for Depreciation on Buildings, Fixtures, etc., Excess Profits Duty, interest on the 5% First Mortgage Debentures, and Dividends on Preference Shares and income-tax thereon, were as follows:—

Year to 31st January, 1912	£0,247
" " 1913	104,000
" " 1914	131,546
" " 1915	134,791
" " 1916	160,222
" " 1917	226,157
" " 1918	258,764
" " 1919	322,824

We are, yours faithfully,
(Signed) DELOITTE, PLENDER, GRIFFITHS AND CO.

The whole of the issued Ordinary Shares are held by Mr. H. Gordon Selfridge, the Chairman and Managing Director, and the main reason the following dividends only have been paid on the Ordinary Shares during the last five years:—

1916	5 per cent.
1917	7 " "
1917	7 " "
1918	7 " "
1919	7 " " (free of Income Tax.)

After payment of the Interest on the Debentures and providing for depreciation the Dividend on the Preference Shares (including those now offered for subscription) and the Ordinary Shares, the Directors propose to pay on such Dividend are covered about 2½ times on the basis of the profits for the last year, and with-out reckoning the additional profits which will accrue from the proceeds of the present issue of 600,000 Shares. Having regard to the increase in the profits year by year, and the fact that the Company's steady expansion in profits is being continued.

The Company has been formed for the purpose of it became essential for the Company to secure additional premises, and the Company therefore acquired the whole of the Share Capital of T. Lloyd and Co., Ltd., whose premises adjoin the Company's Store. Subsequently the Company has purchased all the outstanding interests in Nos. 309 and 311 Oxford street, Nos. 1 to 10 Orchard street, Nos. 22-26 Somerset street, and Nos. 1-10 Tapnell-yard, and have entered into an agreement with the Right Hon. Viscount Portman for a new Lease of the whole premises for a term of 43 years from the 25th day of December, 1915. It is intended to take down the existing buildings, and erect a new Store, incorporated with the present Store, and building operations have already been commenced. When rebuilding has been completed the Store premises will extend along Oxford street from Duke street to Orchard street and back to Somerset street, having a frontage to Oxford street of about 525 feet.

During the last 12 months the Company has acquired various Branch businesses outside of London, all of which are showing increasing and satisfactory profits, and which will be a considerable addition to the Company.

The purchase of the present issue will be used in payment of part of the cost of erecting the new building, and in further development of the business of the Company

The undermentioned Contracts, in addition to contracts in the ordinary course of business, have been entered into:—

(a). Relating to the acquisition of the business as above referred to and to extensions of the premises of the Company. (1) Agreement for Lease dated the 15th day of April, 1915, made between the Right Hon. William Henry Berkeley Viscount Portman of the one part, and the Company of the other part. (2) Agreement dated the 15th day of August, 1918, made between Arthur John Dorell of the one part, and the Company of the other part. (3) Agreement dated the 30th day of October, 1918, made between Arthur Trewin and Henry Trewin of the one part, and the Company of the other part. (4) Agreement dated the 22nd day of November, 1918, between Henry Charles Berry of the one part, and the Company of the other part. (5) Agreement dated the 9th day of July, 1918, between the Executors of John Purcell, deceased, and the said Harry Gordon Selfridge, as agent for and on behalf of the Company. (6) Agreement dated the 29th day of April, 1915, between C. H. Hardy and Company, Limited, of the first part; George Brews, Charles Hardy, William Adgie, and Gerald Vater Brews of the second part; the said Charles Hardy and others of the third part, the said Charles Hardy and others of the fourth part, and the Company of the fifth part. (7) Agreement dated the 6th day of May, 1919, made between Hugh Alexander Caley of the one part, and the Company of the other part. (8) Agreement dated the 30th day of May, 1919, between Thomas Dudley Oakshott and others of the one part, and the Company of the other part. (9) Agreement made the 28th day of July 1919, between Cornelius Fortune Thomson of the one part, and the Company of the other part. (10) Agreement dated the 29th day of August, 1919, between the Most Noble Hugh Richard Arthur Duke of Westminster of the one part, and the Company of the other part. (11) Agreement dated the 22nd day of September, 1919, between the Proprietors of the Grand Junction Canal of the one part, and the Company of the other part. (12) Indenture of Conveyance, Mortgage, and Collateral Security dated respectively the 31st day of July, 1919, between the Prudential Assurance Company, Limited, of the one part, and the Company of the other part. (13) Indenture of Lease dated the 29th day of April, 1919, between Henry Barran, Sir Rowland Hime Barran and William Agnew Barran of the one part, and the Company of the other part. (14) Indenture of Lease made the 28th day of August, 1919, between Thomas Skelton Cole and others of the second part, and the Company of the third part.

(b) An Agreement dated the 22nd day of October, 1919, between the Company of the one part, and the Underwriters named in the Schedule thereto of the other part, whereby the Company agrees to issue Preference Shares of the Company at a commission of two per cent. and a Broker's fee of one-quarter of one per cent., upon the nominal amount of such Shares, which commission and fee will be paid out of revenue.

The above contracts, or copies thereof, a print of the Memorandum and Articles of Association of the Company, and the Auditors' Certificate, may be inspected at the office of Messrs. Jaques and Co., 8 Ely place, London, E.C. 1, between 10 o'clock in the forenoon and 4 o'clock in the afternoon on any day (Saturdays excepted) until the List is closed.

The Articles of Association provide by Section 68 that subject to special terms as to voting upon which any Shares may be issued, or may for the time being be held, every Member shall have one vote in respect of each Share held by him.

Application will in due course be made for a quotation on the London Stock Exchange of the Preference Shares now offered for subscription.

Prior consideration will be given to applications received from existing holders of Preference Shares of the Company.

A brokerage of 3d. per Share will be paid by the Company on all allotments in respect of applications bearing a Broker's or Agent's stamp.

Application for Shares should be made on the accompanying form and forwarded with a separate cheque for the amount payable on each application to the London Joint City and Midland Bank, Ltd., 5 Threadneedle street, E.C. 2, or any of its Branches.

If no allotment is made the deposit will be returned in full, and where the number of Shares allotted is less than the number applied for, the balance of the deposit will be applied towards the amount due on allotment or the final instalment. Failure to pay any instalment when due will render the previous payments liable to forfeiture. Interest at 5 per cent. per annum will be charged on instalments in arrear.

Prospectuses and forms of application may be obtained from the London Joint City and Midland Bank, Limited, 5 Threadneedle street, E.C. 2, or any of its Branches, from Messrs. Haes and Sons, 24 Throgmorton street, E.C. 2, or at the Registered Office of the Company.

FINANCIAL NEWS

THE MONEY MARKET.

Bank Rate (changed April 5th, 1917)..... 5 p.c.

LONDON, SATURDAY EVENING.

The Money Market ends this week with funds still in plentiful supply owing to the withdrawal of foreign balances from the Bank of England. Call loans were quoted at 3½ per cent. at first, but balances were difficult to place at 5 per cent. at the finish. About a quarter of a million was disbursed in various dividends. On Monday a half million call on the Sudan Loan falls due. Weekly advances were on moderate request at 5½ to 4 per cent. The tone of the discount market remains easy, though competition for the limited supply of paper available is less keen than at the beginning of the week. Two months' drafts are quoted 5¼ per cent., three months' 4¾ per cent., and six months, 5 per cent.

IMPORTANT SALE OF VALUABLE LICENSED AND OTHER HOUSE PROPERTY AND BUILDING SITES, SUMMERHILL, GLOUCESTER STREET, AND GLOUCESTER PLACE, DUBLIN.

P. O'CONNOR and SON are favoured with instructions from the Representatives of the late Mr. John Parkinson to SELL BY AUCTION, at their ESTATE SALEROOMS, 49 QUEEN STREET, on TUESDAY NEXT, 28th OCTOBER, at 12.30 o'clock, the following FOUR LOTS:—

LOT 1.—Licensed Premises, No. 26 NORTH GLOUCESTER PLACE, together with PLOT OF GROUND adjoining, on which formerly stood the house No. 12 Lower Gloucester street, all held for a term of 900 years, subject to a rent of £56 17/6 per annum. The late Mr. Parkinson carried on for many years a most successful business in these premises as a spirit grocer and provision merchant. The property is situated in a populous district, and a splendid business should be carried on.

LOT 2.—Nos. 23, 24, and 25 NORTH GLOUCESTER PLACE, held for 900 years, subject to £56 17/6 per annum, but indemnified by the licensed premises. Lot 1, thus having this Lot free of all rent. Nos. 23 and 24 are sublet on lease for 990 years at a rental of £22 per annum. No. 25 is let to weekly tenants at rents producing £31 7s. per annum.

LOT 3.—No. 2 SUMMERHILL, held on lease for 200 years from 1899, subject to £30 per annum. This Lot is let to weekly tenants at rents amounting to £59 per annum.

LOT 4.—(a) Nos. 4 and 5 SUMMERHILL and (b) 25a NORTH GLOUCESTER PLACE, held as to (a) for 880 years, subject to £36 5s. per annum, and as to (b) for 900 years from 1808, subject to £11 15s. per annum. No. 4 Summerhill is sublet to weekly tenants at rents amounting to £52 per annum. No. 5 Summerhill and 25a N. Gloucester place are sublet to a yearly tenant at £52 per annum and taxes.
